Nutrition Canada Coming

Fluoridation: All the Answers?

By JOHN MATTERS

Nutrition Canada, the country-wide survey of health and eating habits that will move to Greater Victoria later this month, likely will yield a significant statement on the effects of artificially fluoridated water supplies, its national director said here Friday.

However, Dr. Z. I. Sabry would not speculate as to what the recommendation might be nor would he say whether the addition of fluorine to community water supplies might become as mandatory as is the fortification of table salt with iodine.

(The addition of iodine to salt, instituted in the 1930s by the federal government as a regulation of the Food and Drug Act, suddenly reduced the incidence of goiter, a disease of the thyroid.)

Sabry acknowledged that there were deep passions on the question of fluoridating water but any federal legislation on the topic likely would have to be complemented by that of the provinces.

Dentists, doctors and public health authorities say they have proof that artificial fluorides sharply reduce dental decay. The opponents of fluorides say these statistics prove nothing and, in addition, there are ethical questions about mass medication.

Sabry explained that Nutrition Canada's survey teams will include dentists and their assessments of dental health will be correlated with the availability of fluoridated water.

"I hope we will be settling the controversy for once and for all," he said.

"There also is the question of whether the people have the right to vote on something of a health nature. Personally, I say 'no' but my wife disagrees with me."

(In B.C., a 60-per cent majority is required in a local referendum before the water supply can be fluoridated.)

Sabry was in Victoria to explain the objectives of Nutrition Canada, which in a two-year study will survey about 21,000 Canadians. The team will be in Victoria Aug. 27 and 30 and Sidney on Aug. 31, assessing about 50 persons each day.

Before they come to Victoria, the teams will be in Campbell River on Aug. 20, Port Alberni on Aug. 25 and Lake Cowichan Aug. 26.

A return visit will be made to Vancouver Island early in the New Year.

The B.C. segment of Nutrition Canada started at Chetwynd on June 28 and it has been moving through the north, Interior and Lower Mainland.

Sabry said he has been quite amazed at the proliferation of the health food industry in this province. In some communities, he has observed that they are not large enough to support a supermarket but somehow support a health food store.

"B.C. probably is ahead of other provinces in this respect," he added. "The phenomenon is that people want to know what they are eating and this is occurring because

Apollo Moon Mission Ends This Afternoon

HOUSTON (AP) — The men of Apollo 15 said Friday during a news conference from space that the small rock which they think may be from the original lunar crust seemed almost to be waiting for them on a pedestal.

As they answered questions put to them by Mission Control for reporters, they passed the halfway point of their journey homeward. They were 122,747 miles from both Earth and the moon, travelling 3,300 miles an hour.

It was a small fragment sitting on top of a dark brown fragment "almost like a pedestal," said moon mission commander David Scott.

"It was there apparently waiting for us. If we had more time at that site, we could have found more."

Alfred Worden and James Irwin also gave their impressions of the moon mission.

The small crystalline rock Scott described is thought to be a part of the primordial crust of the moon — the outer shell which formed shortly after the moon was created.

Splashdown and the end of Apollo 15's 12-day moon mission are aimed at the Pacific Ocean at 1:46 p.m. PDT today.

The 25-minute news conference was televised to Mission Control, but not carried live by any of the commercial television networks.

Asked what their biggest thrill has been on the flight, each astronaut answered in turn:

"Standing up on Hadley Mountain and seeing the lunar module and the rille and the mountains, seeing them all in one scope," said Scott.

"The liftoff that began the flight," said Irwin. "I was finally going into space after all that training."

"Two events stand out," said Worden.

"Right after lunar orbit insertion and we got our first close look at the moon. It was fantastic and spectacular. And the perfect trans-earth injection burn that started us home."

Earlier the astronauts had the opportunity to observe a partial eclipse of the sun and moon.

They looked back at the

The provincial premiers conference went on record here Friday as being opposed to the forthcoming U.S. nuclear test blast at Amchitka Island.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau the premiers expressed concern about the effects of the Alaskan tests and unanimously endorsed the position taken by Canada in opposing it.

Premier Bennett, chairman of the conference, told a news conference there was concern expressed about the danger of atomic blasts "anywhere."

He said the demonstration by conservation groups Friday morning outside the legislative buildings where the meetings were held didn't influence the premiers one way or the other.

Two Months in B.C. Wilderness

Trapper, 48 Found Alive

HAZELTON (CP) — A man lost in British Columbia's northern wilderness since June 1 and presumed dead is recovering in hospital here after a two-month ordeal during which he lived on berries and leaves.

Ronald Alvin Woodcock, 48, had dropped to 100 pounds from 170 and could barely speak when found a few miles from here this week by two fishermen.

Woodcock, an experienced trapper, said he lived on green berries and leaves of edible solomon seal plant, while he trekked his way out of the bush that "was sometimes so thick I could hardly crawl through it."

"The only thing that kept me going was the thought of my wife and six kids. I wanted to see them again."

Woodcock was flown from this northern B.C. town to Blackwater Lake June 1 with three weeks' supplies. He arranged for the pilot to pick him up at the lake June 20, made camp and headed for his trap line. But he lost his way and wandered for almost three days before coming on the Skeena River.

Woodcock then headed cross-country looking for the long-abandoned and overgrown old telegraph trail, cut through the bush in the 1860s. He knew the trail would eventually lead him to Hazelton.

It took him 14 days and by then he had exhausted the food he had taken with him.

"The worst part of it all was the lack of food," he said.

Woodcock shot a moose with his rifle, but couldn't pack much of its meat with him. "I should have taken a handgun with me," he said, "because I saw hundreds of squirrels but couldn't shoot them without blowing them apart."

He estimated it took him a month to walk the 90 miles along the trail to where he was found. Because of the overgrowth, he lost the trail

Canadians Abroad In Drug Troubles

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Bureau

OTTAWA — A Stratford, Ont., girl, Maryanne, 18, held by Moroccan police in Fez on a drug possession charge, is appealig a two-month jail sentence.

Her family, naturally, and indeed the whole of this beautiful little southwestern Ontario Shakespeare show city, is all upset.

Mother, Baby Carriage

Dramatic March Seeks Kidnapping Clues

HARLOW, England (AP) Followed by five police cars, a heartbroken young mother pushed an empty baby carriage through the streets of this Essex town Friday in a dramatic effort to find clues to the kidnapping of her five-month-old daughter Denise.

On each police car was a sign: "Did you see this woman walking here at this time last week?"

Mrs. Terry Weller, 24, walked the quarter-mile from her home to the shopping centre, then came to a halt when Chief Supt. Willis Vickers, shouted over a loudspeaker: "Everyone stand still. Stop. Do not move."

Then, emotion choking his voice, Vickers, himself a father, called out:

"Someone must have seen what happened to baby Denise last week. I believe that here among you is someone who can provide the vital piece of information.

"We have never wanted your help so much as we need it today. Search your minds. Search your hearts. Think. Thanks from the bottom of our hearts. It is just a little baby, mothers. It could be yours."

Thousands of residents took part in the reconstruction of the kidnap, at the request of the police. The kidnapper is believed to be a woman with emotional problems.

Everyone who was in the shopping centre when Denise was kidnapped last Friday had been urged to go there again this morning and to take up the positions they were in when the kidnap took place.

Denise's father, 25, said he and his wife are certain Denise is still alive "because no one could harm a five-month-old baby."

He put his arm around his wife and walked off with her afterwards.

There was no word of any real clue to the missing baby or her kidnapper.

Four Convicted In Greek Trials

ATHENS (UPI) — An appeals court trying 17 persons for subversion against the Greek military government convicted four of them Friday and acquitted 13 others, including three women.

The most severe sentence given to those convicted was a three-year prison term to Constantine Kostarakos, 26, an industrial student who admitted being a leader of the Rigas Ferraeos Students' Resistance Group.

The other three convicted were George Spiliotis, 29, a bank employee; Fotis Provatas, 28, an engineer, and Andreas Christopoulos, 24, a law student. Spiliotis and Provatas each were sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and Christopoulos was given a one-year suspended sentence.

"I am satisfied with the verdict. It could not be better under the circumstances," said Kostarakos after his conviction and sentence were announced.

The defendants were accused specifically of recruiting members for the resistance organization, printing and distributing of leaflets and writing slogans on walls that were anti-government, and maintaining contacts with the outlawed Greek communist party (KKE). All were violations of a special anti-sedition law.

Flowers, Coffin Ready 'Corpse' Very Upset

TORONTO (CP) — "You don't know what it feels like, knowing your coffin and flowers are bought," says Joseph Cormier. "I was very upset."

Cormier arrived at his Dunnville, Ont., home last January just ahead of the scheduled arrival of his body and, although his house was empty, "I could see there was something wrong."

So he telephoned his father-in-law, but all he got was a strained "Is this Joe?" before he heard the telephone bang down on the floor.

His daughter was screaming and "I couldn't make out what was happening for the confusion."

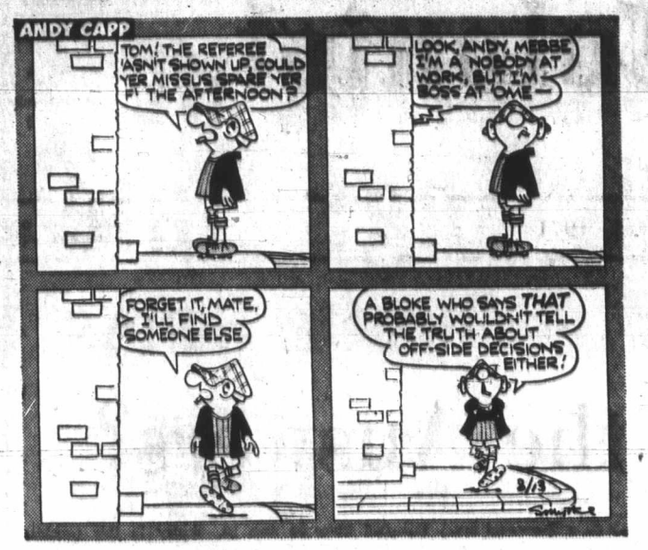
Cormier was the centre of a bizarre case of mistaken identity which had his wife and family involved in arranging his funeral, informing relatives of his death and ordering flowers.

His wife was told of his death by Metropolitan Toronto police while he was job-hunting in Hamilton. The error was not discovered until he returned after eight hours.

The body was identified later as that of another man with the same surname.

Mrs. Cormier is asking the Metro police department for $529.05 to cover expenses incurred.

In a letter to the Metro Police Commission, Metro solicitor A. P. G. Joy recommends payment of the amount in return for a release on liability claims from Mrs. Cormier.



All the Answers?

we are less and less able to identify our foods.

"Weather we like it or not, our choices of food are becoming more difficult. The health food stores are a backlash."

Sabry also said it was his personal opinion that the vitamin C intakes recommended by Dr. Linus Pauling, a Nobel laureate in both physical chemistry and peace, were excessive and of doubtful value.

"I don't think swallowing the great quantities he suggests reduces susceptibility to infection," said Sabry. "As a matter of fact, consumption of four or five grams a day of vitamin C is fantastically dangerous."

He explained that not only would those quantities alter metabolic pathways but they also would produce a biochemical dependency. A person who unknowingly has kidney disease might have catastrophic illness as a result of ingesting the vitamin according to Pauling's prescription.

Sabry also was critical of allegations made in Washington one year ago about the nutritional value of some cereals.

The Nutrition Canada director said Robert Choate, who made the charges, is an engineer. He is not a "Washington nutritional expert," the description used in Canadian newspapers of July 24, 1970.

An example of Choate's misinformation, said Sabry, was his listing of a shredded wheat product as having the least nutritional value. The product in fact is of sugnificant food value.

Nutrition Canada will be analysing blood samples for vitamin C) Serum ascorbate) levels as one of 18 tests that will be made of the blood and urine of each of the survey's participants.

Another test will be of the blood's iron content and, in conjunction with the hemoglobin level and hematocrit, is meant to diagnose iron deficiency anemia.

Sabry said the Food and Drug Directorate, which has organized Nutrition Canada, has been concerned about the iron content of certain foods.

"In order to encourage the food industry to fortify its products with iron, if such is found advisable, we will have to produce the facts on a deficiency," he explained.

Before each of the survey's participants is examined by a doctor and a dentist and has blood and urine samples taken, he is interviewed by a nutritionist.

The nutritionist questions the person not only about the quantity and quality of the food that is consumed but also as to whether he or she is on any medication. That question is meant to probe the use of drugs that can be purchased without a prescription as well as those pharmaceuticals requiring a prescription.

Persons who will be invited to attend the survey clinic are first selected on the basis of socio-economic data from Statistics Canada. This assures the nutrition team that they are interviewing a cross-section of each community.

To analyse seasonal differences in health and eating habits, the Canada Nutrition group will make a return visit to the areas. If they first visited a centre during the summer, the second visit will be during the winter.

moon to watch it change from bright silver into glowing shades of orange as the earth's shadow crossed it.

The astronauts concluded their news conference by beaming earthward a television view of the partially eclipsed moon. It glowed a dull orange which faded into shades of grey. As the earth's shadow moved on, the thin silver of the moon returned to its normal silver gleam.

The eclipse of the moon was visible on earth only in Africa, Australia and Asia.

The astronauts come back to earth with 175 to 185 pounds of moon rock and almost two miles of lunar mapping photos taken in moon orbit by Worden.

The all-air force crew was awakened Friday to the strains of Anchors Aweigh, a navy song.

The astronauts commented they had not had time to play the taped music they took with them into space.

Joe Allen, capsule communicator, told the astronauts a television camera they left on the moon was not working as planned.

"Gee, that's too bad," said Irwin, and then said: "Want us to go back and check it out for you?"

"Knew you were going to ask," said Allen.

Worden made man's first walk in deep space Thursday when he floated down handrails to equipment outside the spacecraft. During 18 minutes outside the spacecraft, Worden recovered two mapping film canisters and inspected instruments.

Two Canadians Killed in U.S.

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Canadians were killed and four Utica-area teenagers were seriously injured Friday in a two car accident on Route 12 in the nearby town of Trenton. State police identified the dead as Andreas Loukas, 35, and Dimitra Antoniou, 25, both of 242 Winona Drive, Toronto.

400 Drown, 100 Arrested

BEIRUT (UPI)—High tides caught two motorboatloads of Iranians trying to illegally enter Kuwait and more than 400 of them drowned in the Persian Gulf, the Iraqi news agency said Friday. The 100 survivors were arrested.

Drug Troubles

in trouble this summer with the law on drug charges in the Middle East, North Africa, Eastern Europe and Mexico.

There were "quite a lot" last year, and the increase this summer has been "very noticeable," although External says it hasn't been "keeping records" in the sense of separating youth-drug cases from the troubles of other Canadians in other situations abroad.

But it is the youth problem that is causing the deepest concern.

External has no representative in Morocco, so is working through its embassy in Madrid with the British consul in Rabat and his vice-consul in Fez in assisting Maryanne's appeal.

The fear at External is that the department heard of only a fraction of the cases.

And often when it does hear of a young Canadian in trouble over drugs, the youth or girls begs the consul to do nothing official about it, lest the folks at home feel disgraced.

It used to be, a few years ago, related External, that when a young Canadian was picked up on a drug possession charge, the routine was to ship him out of the country on the first available aircraft.

But now with drugs, soft and hard, becoming a youth epidemic, authorities, especially in North Africa, the Middle East, Mexico, Eastern Europe, South America and the Soviet Union, have been taking a much harder line with heavy fines and jail sentences.

Consulted, a senior authority in national health and welfare, who insisted on remaining nameless, expressed the hope that the Le Dain royal commission on the non-medical use of drugs would contact External for a report on the drug problems of young Canadians abroad this summer involving so many in crimial charges.

The Le Dain commission, which, in its preliminary report recommended the softening of penalties under the law for the use of marijuana, is due soon to file its final report.

Meanwhile, a special committee on youth, under the aegis of State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, is reported backing away from what had shaped up as an initial recommendation that the use of marijuana be made legal for 18-year-olds.

twice, once for a week and once for three days.

When Woodcock failed to meet the pilot June 20, his brother Jack and an Indian guide went looking for him but couldn't even find his camp. An RCMP helicopter search failed to turn up any clues and Woodcock's family finally gave him up for dead.

Woodcock, who grew up in the bush, has been hunting and trapping for 20 years while working as a lineman for the CN at Endako.

He said he is going back into the bush when he recovers and this time he intends to stay there.

"That's the one thing this experience did for me," he said from his hospital bed, "it's given me the guts to quit my job pounding ties for the CN, collect my pension, and start all over again — in the bush."

Your Good Health

Little Help for Hair

By G. C. THOSTESON M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem is my hair. It is slow in growing in — in other words, the falling greater than the growing. Probably that is due to my age; I am 65 but healthy and love life.

I have a shampoo about once a week, and brush and brush. Is there a tonic you could suggest? — Mrs. O.C.

Questions like this one are pretty common — and there are so many different tonics, shampoos, and home remedies for hair that I couldn't begin to count them.

Yet, when you get right down to it, there are a limited few things that will have any effect on your hair.

First, at 65 (often earlier) it is not at all unusual to have some thinning of the hair. Your glands generally, including those in the scalp, are not as active as they used to be, and there's nothing you can do about it. (Except there may be a need for thyroid or for estrogen, the female hormone. These can have beneficial effect on the hair.)

After all, some people, and this includes more women that you might think, become bald. And there's nothing to do about that, either. Within limits, you can do what is good for your hair, but in the broad picture we have to be satisfied with our natural endowments.

The one important thing to watch for is skin disease, that is, scalp disease. That can really be devastating — but it also can be treated effectively.

But if there's really a skin disease at work, you'll be aware of it. You can see it; you may feel it. Just take a good look in the mirror, and if the scalp looks normal, forget it. If there is scaling, rash, or other such sign of a skin disease, my advice is to see a dermatologist. Fiddling around with home remedies is too hit-or-miss to be effective.

I don't mean that one should get in a panic over a few little flecks of dandruff on the collar. They are flecks of skin. But if there's an abnormally large amount of dandruff, try one of the various dandruff shampoos. If that doesn't help, see a dermatologist.

'The Way He Would Have Wanted It'

Funeral procession headed by long line of motorcyclists heads for Pinehill Cemetery in Toronto Thursday. Most of the cyclists belong to club which Ronald Veitch, killed in an accident at Powder River, B.C. last week, once belonged. "It's the way he would have wanted it," said Veitch's mother who planned the service.—(CP)

300,000 Acres Burned

Fire Sets Grim Record

From CP

The "Tee" fire in northern British Columbia, burning through scrub timber for the last week, was spread across 300,000 acres Friday and was called by forestry officials the province's biggest fire in recent memory.

The blaze was estimated by district forestry officer Bill Bishop to extend 30 miles from north to south and 20 miles across in mostly uninhabited timberlands about 135 miles northwest of Fort Nelson.

The 30,000-acre "Sue" fire burning dangerously close to Donald Station, 15 miles north of Golden near the B.C.-Alberta border, did not gain any acreage Thursday night but winds were creating problems by blowing south during the day and north during the night.

Fire officials also reported difficulty in controlling the 1,000-acre "Palm" fire which has run up into steep rocky terrain on both sides of Gold River, 20 miles northwest of Donald.

Three of the 99 fires in the Kamloops district in interior B.C. were burning out of control. Hot, dry conditions fed a 1,200-acre fire south of Merritt, a 300-acre outbreak near Clearwater on the north Thompson River and a 300-acre blaze at the mouth of the Kwoick creek in the Fraser Canyon, south of Lytton.

A fire north of Takla Lake in the northern interior, B.C., which burned for a week and spread over 1,200 acres, now is being mopped up.

Trio Held In Alaska Bank Haul

SEWARD, Alaska (UPI) — Three suspects have been arrested for the biggest bank robbery in Alaska's history.

Police said Thursday night a man was arrested for disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon.

He became a suspect in the $100,000 holdup when his appearance was matched with the descriptions of the "hippie type" gunmen who pulled off Wednesday's robbery.

Two other suspects were taken into custody Friday.

Antique Automobiles Found Down on Farm

Included in the find was a 1905 Winton touring car, only one of which was previously known to exist. Others included a 1951 Chevrolet with only 43 miles recorded on the odometer, 1926 and 1927 Whippet coupes and a 1919 Hudson Six roadster.

The cars will be sold at auction Sept. 19.

800-Bird Slaughter Alleged

Eagle Deaths Doubted By Mayor, Lawman

SARATOGA, Wyo. (UPI) — A Wyoming mayor and a deputy sheriff doubt whether 800 eagles have been slain by hunters over their state. They don't think that many eagles have ever been in Wyoming.

Mayor Howard Davis of Saratoga said it would be a "miraculous thing" if anyone could prove 800 eagles ever were in Wyoming. And Carbon County Deputy Sheriff Joe Evans says he has only seen three bald eagles in 50 years.

Evans was among those identified in congressional testimony earlier this week as having hunted eagles, which are protected by federal law.

A helicopter pilot, James Vogan, told a senate subcommittee that he ferried hunters on eagle-hunting expeditions and personally knew of at least 800 eagle slayings. Most occurred on a ranch near Saratoga, he said.

'Wrong Way' Record Earns Royal Tribute

HAMBLE, England (UPI) — The ketch British Steel, yachtsman Chay Blyth at the helm, sailed in 20 minutes late Friday from the first nonstop solo trip the "Wrong way" around the world.

So were the cheers of thousands and the blare of a brass band as Blyth, 31, guided the 59-foot boat through an ebbing tide in Southampton water to the pier from which it left last year.

In between was a 292-day, 30,000-mile nonstop voyage around the globe from east to west — the "wrong way" against all prevailing winds.

It was the way chosen in 1519 by Ferdinand Magellan, first man to circumnavigate the globe. Magellan didn't make it home, falling in battle in the Philippines. Chay Blythe was more fortunate.

"I never dreamed for one second I would get anything in the way of a welcome like this," the yachtsman and ex-paratrooper said through a microphone as crowds cheered.

Prime Minister Edward Heath, himself an accomplished yachtsman, welcomed Blyth home on behalf of the British team competing in this year's Admiral's cup off the Isle of Wight.

"We hope we can do as well," Heath said with a smile.

Take the downtown to downtown route. You can catch the Princess Marguerite near the Empress Hotel, drive off at Port Angeles, and be on your way to Seattle. You can also forget about the uncertainty of getting your car on the ferry, because you can reserve car space ahead of time.

The Taxing of 'Profits'

THE PROVINCIAL and federal governments and their agencies pay the equivalent of a certain amount of municipal taxes and there is good reason why they should. Local services to their property could otherwise be an overwhelming burden on the taxpayers of a community. Taken to absurdity, a municipality can be imagined with government buildings occupying so much of its space that with their exemption there would be virtually no tax base.

But apart from this situation, it is most debatable whether one government or its agencies should pay taxes to another.

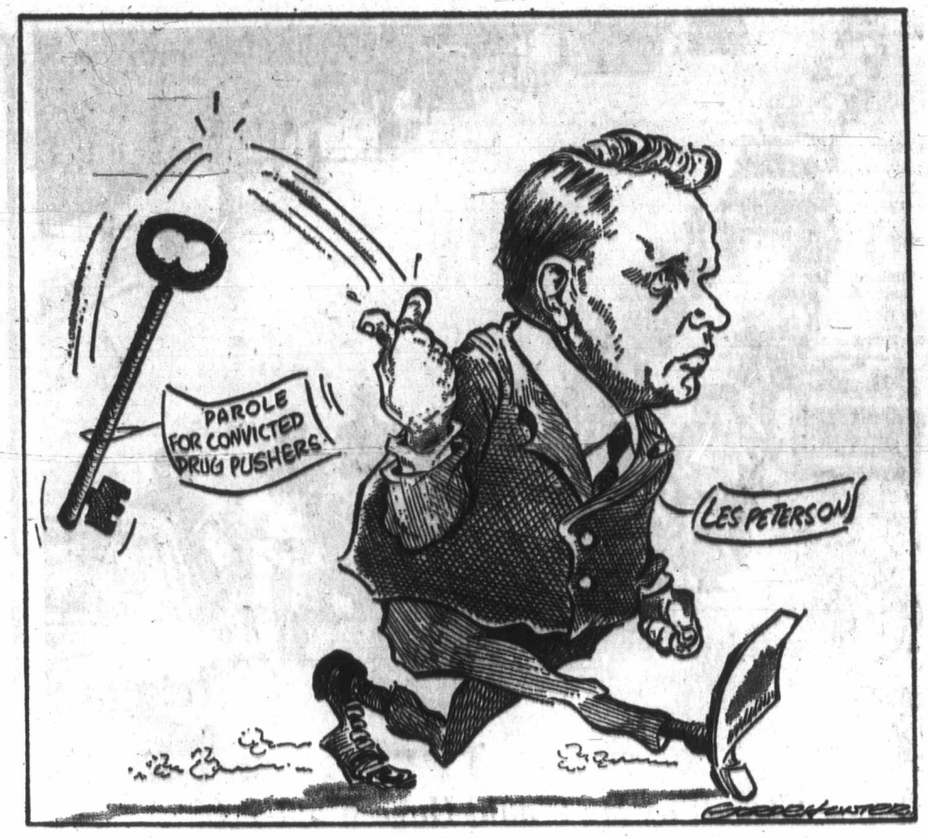
Who would suggest, for instance, that B.C. Hydro should pay income tax, federal or provincial, on the surplus of more than $16 million it managed to achieve last fiscal year? If the people of British Columbia as the customers of Hydro feel aggrieved at having had to yield the corporation a profit, at least they are also the owners and the beneficiaries.

And similarly there's the B.C. government liquor business. It brought the people of the province a profit of $64 million in the last fiscal year, and without it their provincial taxes would have needed to be $64 million higher. The federal government got a tax cut too, of course, without buying and selling the stuff, but one can imagine the screams from Premier Bennett if Ottawa also wanted a share of the profit—a profit which is only a part of the whole provincial revenue picture.

From these two examples it is not too far removed to consider the operations of the Victoria and Vancouver water districts. As the B.C. government is directly in the liquor business and indirectly in the power business, the water districts are in the logging business. The money they make in their cutting and sale of timber may be called a profit, but they are public non-profit bodies. The forestry revenue helps keep down the rates the people of the two districts must pay for water.

The provincial government is now seeking to have the districts pay a yearly tax of 15 per cent of profits of more than $10,000 on the logging under the Logging Tax Act. Fifteen per cent less profit would simply mean the same amount extra for the water users of the districts to pay. It is very much akin to the federal government trying to drain off some of the liquor profits that go into British Columbia's general revenues, or of the power profits that keep the rates from being raised again immediately.

The province's interpretation of the act has been questioned. But if it persists in collecting the taxes, a demand must arise for amendment of the act at the next session.



And throw the key away . . .

Mr. Sharp's Blunder

THE JOINT AND BLUNT rejection of India and Pakistan to the Commonwealth proposal that Secretary-General Arnold Smith act as mediator in the tragic dispute now separating the two nations has dashed whatever hopes there were of establishing some kind of diplomatic rapport in the near future between Dacca and New Delhi.

Dismaying as this is, it is even more appalling to learn that Mr. Smith's services have been refused because he is a Canadian.

According to the Asian News Service, Canada is in bad odor in Pakistan because of critical remarks made by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp over the East Pakistan situation, the result of which is that the Pakistani military government is no longer willing to regard a Canadian national as an honest broker.

Thus the full blame for this rejection and the ensuing delay in bringing about a peaceful settlement of the India -Pakistan problem must be placed squarely upon Mr. Sharp and his continuing open-mouth policy.

This is by no means the first time that Mr. Sharp has placed Canada in an embarrassing position in the field of international relations. It is only to be hoped that the magnitude of his latest blunder is sufficient to persuade Prime Minister Trudeau to get rid of him.

Drug Trafficking Penalties

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Leslie Peterson's telegram to Justice Minister John Turner in Ottawa calling for a concerted federal drive on drug trafficking has a political flavor. Drugs, it says, "in practice, have been accepted as a federal responsibility." Does the federal minister need to be so informed, then? Or is the remark really directed to the public, from a government which has been feeling the heat of criticism of its health minister's waffling over the addiction-treatment problem?

Nevertheless, Mr. Peterson's request that convicted traffickers be required by law to serve their full sentences, without parole or remission, will have much support from the people of this province. If there is some sympathy and hope of rehabilitation for the taker-pusher who sells to support his habit, it can be reflected in short sentences. But for the higher-up merchants of death and degradation, the softening of deterrent penalties should be out of the question. In France, it might be noted, even the use of the guillotine is being considered.

Ottawa Offbeat

That Was the Speech That Was

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

REMEMBER the "Just Society" . . . ? The limousine was rolling smoothly along the traffic - roaring Queen Elizabeth Way, outward bound from Tononto International Airport to St. Catherines.

It was a warm September evening in 1966 and Agriculture Minister Joe Greene, with a couple of aides, had flown from Ottawa to attend the annual festival of the wine in the Niagara flatlands between the escarpment and the Lake Ontario shore, there to be hailed as, of all glorious monarchs, "King of the Grapes."

One of the aides riding with him as the sleek Cadillac tires hissed over the QEW concrete and slid through an overpass was Donald Peacock.

A former Canadian Press reporter in the agency's big Ottawa - Parliament Hill bureau, Donald Peacock some time before had left the newspaper business and, crossing over to the other side of the information fence, had joined the bureaucracy.

It was like a comrade-in-arms deserting the ranks and joining the enemy, if you see the hide-and-seek struggle between the press and the bureaucrats over information — with the civil servants too often trying to conceal it and the reporters forever striving to find it — as a sort of war. He since has re-crossed the information firing line and currently is managing editor of The Calgary Albertan.

Don Peacock became a special assistant to then Agriculture Minister (now Senator) Harry Hays of Calgary and Pekisko Creek near High River, where he has a big and smashingly beautiful spread of beef cattle.

Hon. Harry had more than enough agricultural know-how up there in the Hays thinkbone.

Only trouble was he was having difficutly making it sound like he did.

His performance on the cabinet benches as Prime Minister Pearson's resident political "farmer" was sometimes so awful as to be embarrassing to those who watched and heard, and squirmed in sympathy.

Then along came Don.

Immediate popularity. Overnight success. Sudden much-wanted "honored guest" and "featured speaker," alike in the wheat and cattle country of the West and the money temples of the East.

Hon. Harry was put out to the rich pasture of the Senate and John Joseph Greene, a Toronto lawyer masquerading in an Arnprior law office as a homespun "Ottawa Valley boy" became agriculture minister, inherited Don Peacock as a special assistant and became the same sudden overnight success in the fun-speech department.

It was a trick talent Don Peacock brought to both men, a gift for using wit wisely and well to make themselves heard, listened-to, enjoyed and respected.

But Joe Greene, energetic and edgy as Harry Hays was easy-going and loose, was ambitious. Enormously so.

Everyone knew Lester Pearson was stepping down soon; he had said so himself.

And Joe Greene was hungry for the job. Ravenously so.

That night in September of '66 as the limousine glided St. Catharinesward, Don Peacock addressed Joe Greene, in terms pretty close to this:

"You're going for the leadership aren't you — for if you say you're not, then I'm getting out of here."

Nobody including Joe Greene was sure whether he meant out of the limousine there and then, but they were sure he did mean out of the job.

Joe Greene looked at him sharply and wanted to know why all the sweat.

"I've got the speech right here," said Don Peacock with urgent earnestness, "that can make you leader and having done that, make you prime minister. I've got the phrase — the magic words that can mean anything anyone wants them to mean — 'The Just Society,' that'll make you the winner."

Joe Greene blinked, shook his head if not in unbelief then in doubt, and mumbled: "You're crazy. You're nuts. You're . . . ."

And so, as good as his word, Don Peacock, as he said he would that night, got out — and into Prime Minister Pearson's personal staff.

They say Joe Greene ground down his teeth to the gums in frustration.

Then when Lester Pearson left and Pierre Elliot Trudeau ran for the leadership, Don Peacock switched bosses again, packing along that well-stuffed brief-case with the "Just Society" speech in it.

Joe Greene ran for the leadership, too, ran well, in fact, made the best speech of all the candidates. Paul Martin, Paul Hellyer, John Turner, Allan MacEachen were in the running, too, but it was Pierre Elliott Trudeau and the "Just Society" who crossed the winning line first, just as he was to do later with the same "Just Society" ahead of Conservative Leader Bob Stanfield.

Hello Joe! What d'ya know!

"I know inflation's behind us. That's why my bill is so tiny."

Thanks, But No Thanks . . .

From The Province, Vancouver

The proposed 750-foot observation tower in the 1300 Block West Georgia seems about as original as an oil derrick and as architecturally welcome as a poke in the eye with a burnt stick.

One doesn't need to be a town planner to be horrified at the thought of this giant beer bottle soaring 75 stories into the sky and stripping the whole downtown of its dimension and perspective.

Seattle has its Space Needle, Calgary its Husky Tower and Niagara Falls its Skylon. Vancouver needs such an addition to its downtown skyline about as badly as it needs Mayor Tom Campbell.

If the Four Seasons project will ruin the view of the mountains from the West End try to imagine what the Guinness Tower would do to our backdrop. It would grotesquely distort the proportions of the North Shore peaks as well as downtown buildings.

After all, for those who want a panoramic view, there is a lift to the top of Grouse Mountain, a natural 4,000-foot lookout.

Should we really want something distinctive in this line we might think about putting a huge statue near the end of Point Grey. One with a beacon that could be seen 100 miles away at night either from the air or the sea, a sort of Colossus of Rhodes, Vancouver version. Perhaps it could be of Premier Bennett with a neon-lit torch of progress, taking one of his famous second looks.

The Freedom Of Doctors

THE news of Health Minister Loffmark's new powers with regard to hospital appointments can only be regarded as a threat to the professional freedoms that we as Canadians have long thought of, not as a privilege, but as a basic right. In a move to play down the significance of this legislation the government has declared that this dictatorial action is only to rectify the numerical inequalities of practising physicians in various geographical locations within this province. Let us hope that the people of British Columbia can see that the implications of these powers, i.e., the means, can not be justified by the government's stated end.

The problem of underserviced areas in a country is not a new one in any part of the world, and certainly not in Canada. For years provincial governments have lured industry to designated areas with promises of serviced lots and preferred tax rates. Employers have enticed laborers and professional men to go to rural and northern areas with offers of good pay and more fringe benefits.

The specific problem of physicians has been dealt with successfully in a variety of ways both by other provinces in Canada and other countries. Newfoundland, for example, has a real problem supplying health services for its population in remote fishing villages, yet this challenge was handled by the government by offering attractive contracts to physicians to go out on a salaried basis to the rural areas. Recently, Ontario has offered undergraduate bursary assistance to both medical and dental students in return for several years of service (with a guaranteed minimum income) in an underserviced area after they have completed their training. This problem is encountered in Russia and yet their dictatorial powers have not been required, as the state pays medical students a wage during their training, and, upon qualification assigns them to a rural area for several years, after which even there a physician may practise wherever he chooses.

In summary, it is my sincere and not totally unfounded belief that the medical profession in general and medical students in particular are more than willing and even anxious to satisfy our society's demand and need for physicians in rural areas. What the people of this province need now is a government that will communicate with the medical profession in a meaningful manner to find a mutually satisfactory way to meet this challenge. This is certainly not what Premier Bennett's government did in imposing unprecedented restrictions on physicians which have widespread and profound implications on one's professional freedoms in this province.

Dictatorial

I wish to make a strong protest against Mr. Loffmark's ill-considered and even reprehensible action in usurping such dictatorial power over our medical profession. This action was apparently taken by him and sanctioned by Mr. Bennett and his cabinet with no consultation with the House. Such precipitate action may be necessary in dire emergency but in this case it was not of such urgency and belies the concept of democratic rule by the people for the people. The potential of such sweeping legislation poses an incredible threat to the freedom and trained judgment of our doctors. It also causes much perturbation and even distress among the populace generally.

Granted there are rural areas lacking adequate medical care. Surely collaboration between Mr. Loffmark and our medical socities could have found a solution to this problem by more gentle and acceptable means. Such a solution would have left a large majority of our population with a much higher regard for the concern felt by our government for the well-being of all persons involved.

As I consider brevity can be strength this is all I have to say against such hasty and arbitrary action by a so-called free enterprise government representative.

Yea, Kiosks

Great idea those kiosks! Far better to have the young traveller arrive in town informed than have him wandering aimlessly about the city. They're going to arrive in Victoria at any rate, kiosks or no kiosks, and what better way to keep track of their numbers and their probable location!

Perhaps the operators of the kiosk could provide another service to the community. With little more effort they could assure that the young people do not tend to congregate in large numbers in any one location.

The whole idea certainly beats the hit-and-miss tactics of the '20s and '30s when riding the rods was the vogue.

Let's hope there are funds available to operate the kiosk next year.

Not Mine

Thank you for your interest in my research as evidenced by your article in the July 31 edition of The Daily Colonist.

However, since I did not see the article prior to its publication I wish to make the following observations: In the article, remarks about learning were attributed to me. All such remarks which I made were with reference to the context and design of the research and not with regard to learning theories in general. I believed I had made this emphatically clear at the time the remarks were made. Therefore, the sweeping interpretations and generalizations in your article must be considered as yours and not mine. In sum, I do not believe the article accurately represents either my work or my views.

Anomalies

We see in the Provincial Court column of July 31 that . . . "Mrs. . . . aged 59 was fined $250 for taking four items worth a total of $4.22 from the Bay." On August 1 the same column told us that . . . "Mr. . . . aged 25 was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of less than $50". In the second case it is reported that Provincial Court Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said, after a discussion with the accused, "I'm imposing a fine considerably less than usual because you're a student seeing the country."

What kind if justice is being meted out in our courts? Do different judges have different standards or interpret precedents differently? Why does a 25-year-old hitch-hiking student who stole, not a necessity such as food or clothing, but a roll of camera film, only receive a fine 40 per cent the magnitude of the fine that a 59-year-old local resident received?

It is realized that every case must be judged on its own merits but when, say petty theft is involved (as in both these cases) what should be considered as merits? Need? I think so; a starving human must be shown laxity for stealing food. Kleptomania? Of course; that person is ill and cannot properly account for his or her actions. Many other humane reasons should be taken into account when assessing punishment, but I cannot understand why 25-year-old mature men "students seeing the country" merit better treatment than other people who decide to remain static.

These anomalies in our courts, as printed in this paper, show gross discrimination and make a mockery of any Human Rights Act.

ERIC SHERWOOD,

Get With It

Re: Alderman Baird's remarks about the so-called "hippies" in the square. First, please let me state that all long-hairs are not hippies and all are not dirty, but those who like to downgrade the youth of today put them all together. May I state that there are many dirty short hairs in places of business, but that's different isn't it?

Do these critics of long hair recall that Christ was a long-hair, wore sandals and had dirty feet?

My suggestion would be that Alderman Baird and others who criticize, turn their attention to our disgraceful sewage system. Victoria has twice the number of infectious hepatitis cases of other cities her size because of it.

My hat is off to Mr. Philip Holmes for his desire to drop this "Little Old England" bit; it is suffice to say we are different. There are too many here who try to live apart from the rest of Canada, then when things do not come the way of British Columbia, they are annoyed, and this is especially true of Victoria. Just because we have the name we do not have to be "Victorian," and the word "old" in some cases carries a peculiar odor.

So, let us get busy with the important things and forget the people in the square. They are at least minding their own business.

12 Panthers Acquitted In Just 31 Minutes

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An all-male jury of 10 blacks and two whites deliberated just 31 minutes Friday before acquitting 12 Black Panthers of attempted murder during a shootout with police last September.

The verdict brought a yell of triumph from the audience. The defendants, 10 men and two women, laughed, shouted and raised fists in Black Power salutes.

Trend May Strain Ties with Moscow

Sadat Grows Bolder

BEIRUT (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's increasing show of independence and his reported crackdown on pro-Communists may strain Egypt's relations with the Soviet Union, Arab Political sources in Beirut said Friday.

Sadat has made it clear to the Soviets that Egypt draws a line between acceptance of Soviet aid and friendship and the establishment of communism in Egypt, Arab diplomatic sources in Cairo said. Egypt opposes communism on religious, social and other grounds.

Joseph Sisco, U.S. assistant secretary of state, returned to Washington from Jerusalem Friday with assurances Israel wants a continuation of efforts to achieve an interim Middle East peace agreement, official sources said in Jerusalem. Israeli officials said, however, there were few other concrete results from Sisco's 10-day stay in Israel.

Sisco had no statement when he arrived in Washington Friday night. Officials said he would confer soon with Sate Secretary William Rogers. A state department spokesman also said there was reason to believe progress could be made in the weeks to come toward an agreement that would include reopening the Suez Canal, despite continued differences between Israel and Egypt on the issue.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel basically approves the idea of reopening the Suez Canal as an interim agreement but that Egypt, which wants Israel to agree to withdraw from the Sinai Peninsula, was attaching unacceptable conditions.

"They would like us to imperil our security and our political rights," Eban said.

In Tel Aviv, a former Israeli military intelligence chief, Hiam Herzog, said Sadat wants to continue the ceasefire but the Egyptian army could pressure him into renewing the war. Herzog said Sadat "will seize on any pretext to prolong the ceasefire."

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said Egyptian authorities had arrested two prominent pro-Communists. It identified them as Khaled Mohieddin, an elder statesman of Egyptian politics, and Ibrahim Saaduddin, president of the Socialist Institute.

Sharp Spared Court Sitting

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer has ruled as premature lawyer Robert Lemieux's request for a rogatory commission to go to Cuba to collect information which he says is essential to the defence of three clients awaiting trial.

Lemieux had subpoened Mitchell Sharp, external affairs minister, to appear in court Friday to explain why he had refused to negotiate safe conduct to Cuba for the commission.

Sharp did not appear and the federal lawyer representing him pointed out that in view of the judgment, Sharp's presence at the hearing was not necessary.

Lemieux maintains the innocence of Claude Morency, Andre Roy and Francois Lanctot could be proved by obtaining information from Cuba last fall in exchange for the safe release of kidnapped British trade commissioner James Cross.

Parrot Verdict Gets Worker Off the Hook

ROME (UPI) — A champagne-sipping parrot who figured in one of Italy's wackiest court cases was returned in an army limousine Friday to one of two men who claimed ownership of it.

Two Rome judges, a public prosecutor and a special court investigator decided after six months on the east the bird is named Loreto and belongs to office worker Corradino Viennese.

The decision meant bar owner Giovanni de Santis lost his case — and the bird he called Marco.

It also meant Viennesse will not face charges of receiving stolen property.

The case began in March when Viennesse walked into de Santis' bar with the bright colored bird perched on one shoulder.

De Santis said the bird was one stolen from his bar in January. The two men brawled while customers looked on, then both went to the police station.

A judge decided the bird should go to whichever man succeeded in making the parrot answer to its name.

"Marco, Marco, Marco," cooed de Santis.

The bird shook itself.

"Loreto, answer me, Loreto," said Viennese.

Protesters, Toe-Trompers Add Spice to Trudeau Tour

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife Margaret sailed from this town Friday to the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence after completing a four-day tour of Newfoundland.

The trip to the tiny Magdalens, part of Quebec, was described as a 24-hour private break from the Trudeaus' tour of Atlantic Canada that began July 30. Trudeau visited the Magdalens in 1969.

Local residents carrying signs protesting a reduction in Air Canada flights through this town of about 6,000 met Trudeau when he arrived Friday.

The prime minister was given a 150-year-old pottery spittoon from Brittany, France, by 11-year-old Paula Simons of Cape St. George on the nearby Port au Port Peninsula. Paula spoke to Trudeau in archaic French, the language of about 13 per cent of the 7,000 persons on Port au Port.

The Trudeaus took a helicopter trip here from Port aux Basques on the southwestern tip of the island. Along the way, they were treated to a spectacular view of the cliffs and gorges around Cape Anguille on the western coast.

In Port aux Basques, a crowd estimated by police at 2,500 met the prime minister in the local stadium. It appeared to be the largest crowd on the Newfoundland leg of the tour, which has also included Nova Scotia and the French island of St. Pierre.

The enthusiastic crowd rushed forward when the Trudeaus arrived by helicopter from an earlier visit to Corner Brook. In their eagerness, some of them stepped on Mrs. Trudeau's toes. The prime minister spoke briefly to the crowd in the stadium.

Earlier in the day at Corner Brook, Trudeau told about 2,000 persons in a city park that Newfoundlanders have a "quality of gentleness' found in few places in Canada. In a brief address, he noted that Newfoundland crowds "don't push and shove . . . they shake your hand with warmth, not brutality. I hope you all remain that way."

He said he found Newfoundlanders to be a "source of friendship, humanism and gentility."

Surrender for Song

VAN NUYS, Calif. — A musician armed with a .357 magnum pistol held a sound engineer hostage for two hours in a record studio and sang hymns with a police sergeant before surrendering.

Frank Hoffman, 28, finally turned over the pistol to Sgt. Gary Barrett after the officer persuaded him to give up. The hostage, Gary Brant, 21, was unharmed.

The strange series of events began early in the morning when Hoffman, a drummer, called the Van Nuys police station and got Barrett on the telephone. He warned he was holding a hostage in the studio and made several demands.

One was that his girl friend be brought to the studio so they could be married in the parking lot immediately. Another was that an uncle turn over a large sum of money.

Barrett suggested he go to the studio to talk things over and Hoffman agreed. A police captain took over the telephone conversation, which at one time also hooked in a doctor who had treated Hoffman.

By the time Barrett reached the scene, four other officers were deployed around the building. Barrett, unarmed, went up to the front door and began talking to Hoffman.

In attempts to get Hoffman to turn over his gun, the officer linked hands with the suspect through the mail slot in the door, sang church hymns and recited the Lord's Prayer.

Drugs, New Tax Unite Premiers

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Provincial first ministers wound up two days of "fruitful" discussions in Victoria Friday after reaching unanimous agreement to seek a share of the new capital gains tax revenue.

The premiers also expressed concern over Canada's growing nation-wide drug problem but were unable to reach agreement on the best method of tackling it.

Premier Bennett, as chairman and host, summed up the meetings held in the legislative chambers Thursday and Friday as "very fruitful and full of good feeling."

He defended the first ministers' conference against charges of "lobbying" saying that the request for changes in federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson's new proposals simply was "advice" to Ottawa.

No Figure

The letter addressed to Prime Minister Trudeau, endorsed by the eight premiers present at Friday's meeting, called on the federal government to share with the provinces new revenues from capital gains taxation. No figure was mentioned.

It also asked for an extension of the federal government's guarantee that there would be no loss of revenue to the provinces under the proposed new Benson taxation plan for three years after the system was introduced.

This guarantee, the letter to Trudeau said, should be for a five-year period.

Time Needed

It also urged the federal government to continue the present basis for collection of the provincial share of personal income taxes.

The fourth and final point in the letter was a request to Ottawa to continue the present system of estate and gift taxation for "at least a year" from Jan. 1, 1972.

The extra time, it added, is needed to allow the provinces which now don't have their own estate taxes to assess the full implications of federal withdrawal from the field and set up their own collection system.

B.C. endorsed the proposal, Bennett said, but isn't directly affected, because it already occupies 75 per cent of the estate tax field.

End Paroles

He refused again to say whether this province will expand to take in the 25 per cent of the field which is to be vacated by Ottawa.

Bennett told a wind-up news conference attended by the eight remaining premiers (Alberta's Harry Strom returned home Thursday to continue campaigning in that province's Aug. 30 election and Newfoundland's Joey Smallwood didn't show up) growing drug use is of concern to all provinces.

He said some premiers supported B.C.'s request made earlier this week that Ottawa end paroles and remission of sentences for convicted drug traffickers. But he wouldn't say how many or name them.

'Make Study'

New Brunswick's Richard Hatfield said he was pleased there had been a full discussion of the drug problem because it exists in all provinces and is growing more serious all the time. He added no agreement could be reached on the best way to handle the problem.

"I would like to see the federal government take over research in this field because it can do an effective and reliable job," Hatfield said. "Then it would be up to the provinces to inform particularly the very young through a drug education program."

Premier Alex Campbell said Prince Edward Island's position was that there should be no changes in Criminal Code provisions until further research into drugs had been carried out.

The premiers of the two largest provinces, Ontario's William Davis and Quebec's Robert Bourassa, had little to say for themselves at the news conference and afterwards.

Bourassa said he had talked privately with "most" of the premiers about the constitutional questions raised by the Victoria Charter but hadn't reached any definite conclusions. He said it was possible bilateral talks on the constitutional question between Quebec and Ottawa would begin shortly.

Money Welcome

Nova Scotia's Gerald Regan, who will host the 1972 premiers conference, said he supported Quebec's stand on the need for foreign investment.

Regan said if there was any limitation on foreign capital the bulk of investment funds which were available would be funnelled into provinces where there is rapid growth leaving the smaller provinces in great difficulties.

"We must continue to have access to foreign capital from a variety of countries," Regan said. "The provinces must continue to use their legislative authority to ensure the responsible behavior of those interests."

Premier Edward Schreyer said Manitoba was happy that agreement had been reached among the provinces on new federal tax proposals and particularly concerning estate taxes.

He and Saskatchewan's Allan Blakeney were concerned over agricultural policies.

Litter Drive Shifts To Liquor

With a good start already made on reducing litter from soft drink containers and discarded automobiles, B.C. is turning its attention to the problem of empty liquor bottles.

"We are taking a look at the liquor bottle situation and I think it may be feasible to do something about it," says Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, whose department is responsible for administering the province's new Litter Act.

Train Crash Kills One

RIDGEWAY, Ont. (UPI) — Three engines and 26 cars of a Canadian National Railways freight train jumped the track Thursday night after colliding with a 40-ton dump truck, killing one person and injuring six.

Williston

New Dam Rumor 'Malarkey'

Resources Minister Ray Williston Friday described as a "lot of malarkey" reports that suggest provincial government approval has already been given for a Stikine River dam.

Williston said investigation of a possible dam site on the river is being carried out by Brinco Ltd. prior to an expected firm proposal to the government.

No approval, secret or otherwise, has been given to the company, he said. The government will not consider "iffy" proposals so the investigation is necessary, he said.

Reports from the area, 30 miles south of Dease Lake in northwestern B.C., indicated residents are under the impression that a 600 foot earth fill dam will definitely be built.

The dam is required to provide power to develop mineral resources in the area which is expected to be served by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by 1974.

The government has made clear that B.C. Hydro Power authority hasn't got the resources to provide the necessary power to open up the area.

French Language Policy

'Separatism May Die'

For Premier Robert Bourassa, an assurance granted to the French society in Quebec that it would maintain within confederation its distinct cultural identity, could mean the end of separatism in Quebec as a political force.

"That is the reason," he said in an interview Thursday, "why I have been making all efforts towards implementing French as the working language in the province."

In that respect, Bourassa stated, the Gendron Royal Commission on the status of French Quebec set up by the previous Union Nationale government in 1969, had requested a month delay for the presentation of its report now due in October. The report will aim to formulate methods of application of the Bourassa government policy proposal that French become the working language in the province.

Bourassa further said ". . . it is clear that Quebec is most interested in a revision of the constitution of the country as it is our province which initiated that revision four or five years ago.

"We want a new division of powers between the province and the federal state," he said.

Bourassa said he has not lost hope that an agreement may be reached between governments in Canada on the modified constitutional charter. His government vetoes the constitutional charter that was formulated at the federal-provincial conference here in mid-June.

He said that before he can make new proposals to modify the Victoria constitutional charter he needs to talk to his cabinet and his top civil servants.

"Many of my cabinet colleagues," he said, "are currently on holidays. Until almost the end of July, I was tied up in the national assembly in Quebec, morning, day and night, by a filibuster on a bill which was finally adopted dealing with the $6 billion to $7 billion development project of the James Bay region."

He said the premiers' conference here is an occasion for him to have private talks with other premiers on the Victoria Constitutional Charter.

Premier William Davis of Ontario said Thursday he expected to discuss the subject with Bourassa before they both leave the city today.

Bourassa also said that before he could have meaningful talks with other premiers on the constitutional charter, there would have to be a basis of agreement between Quebec and Ottawa on the formula that would make it acceptable to Quebec.

In an interview, Premier Harry Strom of Alberta stated his objection to that view. "There cannot be any valid discussions on the Victoria Charter between Quebec and Ottawa only," he said.

PROVINCIAL COURT

Aug. 19 was set Friday in Victoria Provincial Court as trial date for a 23-year-old man who pleaded not guilty to three Victoria charges containing 12 counts of false pretences and one count of dangerous driving.

Two of the false-pretences counts against the man, Manuel Pacheco of no fixed address, mentioned worthless cheques allegedly used to buy pet monkeys — one for $131.25 July 14 and one for $103.95 a week later.

All 12 mentioned worthless cheques, four valued at more than $50 and the rest under $50, and alleged they were cashed in six Victoria stores between July 8 and 21 for a total of more than $556.

Five charges laid earlier, also containing 13 counts, were withdrawn by Judge William Ostler on application of prosecutor John Macintyre before the new charges were read. Bail was set at $2,500.

Howard Shannon, 21, of 2226 Shakespeare, was remanded in custody by Ostler to Aug. 18 for a pre-sentence report and sentence after pleading guilty to a two-count Victoria charge of uttering.

Jytte Larsen, 20, of the same address, was remanded on her own recognizance in the sum of $500 to the same day for a similar report and sentence following her plea of guilty to a Victoria charge containing three counts of uttering and two more of forgery.

A Victoria policeman said $290 worth of cash and other items were obtained July 27, 28 and 29 at several businesses in Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt after the two accused and a juvenile found some blank cheques a woman left behind when she moved away from Victoria May 31.

Mrs. Maris Archer, 54, of 2526 Graham, received a suspended sentence and six-month probationary term after she pleaded guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — shoplifting a $3.28 steak Friday morning from the Safeway store at 1670 Hillside.

The Big, Bad What?

By GEORGE GIBSON—
Business Editor

Who's afraid of the big bad wolf? That's the one turned loose by Consumer Affairs majordomo Ronald Basford to see what it eats. It's clothed in something woolly called Bill C-256 or the Competition Act and it was dropped down the parliamentary chimney last June 29.

There has been a bit of huffing and puffing but houses everywhere are still standing and so is the business of selling them. We were given assurance by the president of the Victoria Real Estate Board Friday that the proposed bill holds no particular fears for the industry here.

Norman Ross, who also has just been elected chairman of the realtor division of the Real Estate Institute of B.C., explained the local feeling.

Ross said he feels there are three main areas that apply in real estate selling:

● First, he feels the amendments to the present Combines Act — for that basically is what the new bill is all about — will enforce 1969 legislation which provided stiffer penalties for false or misleading advertising;

● And, he feels the government is opting for a policy of granting the professions and occupational groups "a maximum of self-government consistent with the public interest," a fact that must have primacy. Professions must always yield to the public.

● Furthermore, as the government objective and attitude toward doctors and lawyers is apparent, the real estate industry would have little argument left in objecting to similar treatment.

The big item in the bill is Section 16 which would effectively outlaw the fixing of commissions through the multiple listing services now operated by Canadian real estate boards.

The boards would then have at least three options:

● They could set up a company that sells the multiple listing service to real estate brokers and the individual brokers could set their own minimum commission rates for salesmen without collusion.

● They could ask the provincial governments to pass statutes setting up public governing bodies which would set minimum commissions for the industry within that province.

● They could ask the provincial government to name real estate boards as governing bodies with the power to fix standard rates for the industry in various areas across Canada.

All of these courses, while each presents difficulties, could be coped with, Ross pointed out that MLS in the United States is a private company selling its listings to brokers, and it worked quite well.

The bill won't get second reading until late in the fall and Ross feels it likely won't become law until late 1972 or even early 1973.

Basford is welcoming industry response to the proposal — following the current trend of legislation by participation.

Said Ross:

"I would hope that businesses involved would send in their representations and that rules can be devised that are sensible, workable and realistic.

"Our national body, the Canadian Real Estate Association, would no doubt prepare a brief dealing specifically with the proposals in the new bill.

"We should be able to discuss why we practise competition in terms of service to the public, efficiency and orderly marketing of a prime element to living," he concluded.

Gross sales in July for the Victoria area topped $5 million for the first time ever. About 80 per cent of that total was in single-family dwelling units.

Ross said that there are 120 members of the real estate board here and there are 580 licensed salesmen.

On a house sale, a company's commission is 5 per cent and if the house is on multiple listing, the commission is boosted to 7 per cent. The 2-per-cent difference is used for MLS administrative costs.

Multiple listing means that given brochure on the house all 580 area salesmen are for sale, enlarging the market from perhaps 10 or 20 sales people of a firm that would have an exclusive listing.

Dollar Gets Better

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar rebounded slightly and the price of gold dipped sharply on London and European markets Friday in a calming of the financial chaos stirred up Thursday by France's move to beat gambling on the franc.

The Thursday storm drove the dollar to new lows in some European centres and forced government banks to prop up the U.S. currency. The dollar's health was suspect and foreign funds flooded into France.

The dropping price of gold, mirrored the easier mood on currency exchanges.

In London and Zurich, the two main gold markets, speculative buying dried up. Gold finished the day in both centres at $42.60 an ounce, down 15 cents from Thursday.

The dollar kept steady in London where the pound was worth $2.4188 compared with $2.4195 Thursday when the Bank of England was supporting the U.S. currency to prevent it falling below its official "floor" level of $2.4200 to the pound.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will borrow $862 million in foreign currency from the International Monetary Fund Monday to buy back dollars which continue to be a glut on international exchange markets, the treasury announced Friday.

The transaction will reduce further the U.S. total reserve assets which on June 30, the last date for which figures are available, had fallen to $13.5 billion, the lowest point since August, 1938.

The exchange graphically points up the weakness of the dollar on international markets.

White House Cheered

Jobless Rise 'Good News'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. unemployment rate rose slightly in July to 5.8 per cent but the White House called the new figure "good news" and expressed confidence its policies would put more people to work by the year's end.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the July figure was 0.2 per cent above June's 5.6 per cent rate, a figure widely believed to be lower than it actually was because many students were still in school when the June sampling was taken.

Instead, George Shultz, director of the office of management and budget and President Nixon's chief economic policymaker, contrasted the July figure with May's 6.2 per cent, which was equal to the highest rate in 10 years.

"On the whole," he told reporters at the white House, "what those figures show is that unemployment didn't change materially from June to July and there was some drop from the May rate.

"Unemployment is too high and we intend to get it down," he said. "While we are pleased to see it decline we are by no means satisified. It's got a long way to go."

He predicted the unemployment rate would fall to about 5 per cent by the end of the year even though widespread layoffs in the steel industry this month are expected to drive the figure higher in August.

Net Earnings Down During First Half

The Dow Jones survey of net earnings of Canadian companies for the first half of 1971 shows an 86 per cent decline compared with the first half of 1970 even though there was improvement in the second quarter.

First-quarter net earnings were down 16 per cent compared with 1970 but down only 32 per cent from April through June

Sharpest declines were shown in mining, pulp and paper while improvements came from finance and trust companies and oils. Returns were calculated from 97 major firms.

'Slanderous Contempt' Upsets Judge

Assault Case Transferred

"Slanderous contempt" voiced against Judge William Ostler over a Victoria radio station caused the judge to announce Friday in Victoria Provincial Court he would assign the case of a 32-year-old Saanich man to another court.

In doing so, Ostler made it clear he was not saying the accused man, Roger Lindal of 5191 Rambler, had made the remarks — and he also declined to ask for an apology.

Lindal appeared to have a trial date set on his charge of common assault early July 24 in the Victoria police station on Frederick Mills, a Victoria police constable.

After defence lawyer Mrs. Elouise Wilson entered a formal plea of not guilty, Oct. 19 was set aside for the trial and Ostler said:

"I think I should say for the record it has been repeatedly brought to my attention that, since his last appearance in court, this accused or somebody representing and purporting to be him phoned to local radio station and, as I am informed, in a lengthy harangue declaimed and inveighed against me and the impropriety of trying him because of previous experience in this court."

The judge indicated a change of venue could have been granted if Lindal had "had the courtesy" to apply for one "instead of adopting this unseemly course."

Lindal interrupted at about this time to indicate he felt a check should have been made to determine if the voice on the radio station was his.

The judge replied he had not said Lindal did the speaking, but someone purporting to be him did. He then added he "assumed" the radio station records such programs and these "can be readily checked" — and he also assumed voices are as identifiable as fingerprints.

"I'd rather have you than St. Jorre, that's for sure," said Lindal, referring to Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, who is presiding in the court's other section while regular Judge E. F. N. Robinson is on holiday.

Ostler then said that, "as a result of this slanderous contempt uttered while the case was in progress and pending," some people might feel justice was not done if he presided and "a certain verdict" was reached.

"I therefore assign the case to another judge," he said.

Mrs. Wilson rose to say that, if her client had made the statements, he should apologize at once. Ostler replied: "I am not asking for an apology . . . you can take that up with him."

He said he would simply assign the case and "I propose to go no further at the moment."

If the trial does take place Oct. 19 as scheduled, it will not be before Ostler or St. Jorre but before Robinson, whose holidays will be over by then.

Exchange Visit Program

Base Inspected By U.S. Cadets

About 30 air cadets from the United States and Europe tested their sea-legs at Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt this week during a three-hour tour of Dockyard facilities.

The group is part of a contingent of 60 teenage cadets from seven countries visiting Canada under the international air cadet exchange visits program sponsored by the Air Cadet League of Canada and the Canadian Armed Forces.

The 30 cadets toured Esquimalt harbor facilities, boarded the USS Providence and went for a ride in a naval harbor craft. They were billeted overnight at Work Point barracks, CFB Esquimalt, prior to departing for the mainland.

Designed to promote international goodwill, the air cadet exchange program is a reciprocal agreement with Canadian cadets paying return visits this summer to participating countries.

Wakeham Shares B.C. Open Lead

Wakeham

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Wakeham of Cowichan and Ray Botts of Los Angeles blasted five-under-par 66s Friday to take the first-round lead in the $15,000 British Columbia Open golf championship.

Six others toured the 6038-yard Marine Drive Golf and Country Club course in 67.

Playing in bright sunshine with temperatures in the 80s, 31 of the field of 199 bettered par and another 16 matched it.

Wakeham, with a pair of 33s, was three under par on the front nine and two under coming in. Botts had 32-34

Among the six tied at 67 was John Elliot Jr. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who defeated Moe Norman last month in a sudden-death playoff to win the Manitoba Open

Elliot, second-placed money winner on the seven-tournament Canadian circuit, carded rounds of 34 and 33

With him at 67 were Ron Willey, the host Marine Drive professional, former Victorian Dick Munn of Delta, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, Jerry Breaux of Las Vegas, and Jack Westover, North Vancouver.

CARDED EAGLE

Westover, who blazed to a 64 in a pro-am event Thursday, provided the surprise of the day by scoring an eagle two on the 424-yard, par-four 17th hole, considered the toughest on the Marine Drive course

Forrest Fezler of San Jose, who equalled the course record Thursday with a eight-under-par 63, trailed the leaders by two at 68.

Also at 68 were Scott Keenlyside of White Rock, winner of the British Columbia junior championship two weeks ago, Stan Homenuik of Winnipeg and John Mahaffey, Houston.

ISLANDERS CLOSE

Still very much in contention are Norm Boden of Honeymoon Bay and John Morgan of Victoria.

Boden carded an opening 70 and Morgan had a par 71.

Greg Palmer of Nanaimo finished with 73, Mike Rivers of Nanaimo 81 and Dick Silverberg of Glen Meadows 82.

Bill Wright Jr., of Edmonton, who would have been among the leaders, was disqualified on the sixth hole for playing the wrong ball after two balls went into the rough. Wright started the round on the back nine and was one under after 14 holes when the disqualification came.

Norman, the leading money winner on the Canadian circuit, two-over-par 73.

He won the Alberta Open last week to boost his earnings to $5,275.

Winner of the B.C. Open gets $3,000 It ends Sunday with only the low 70 pros plus ties and the best 10 amateurs plus ties surviving the 36-hole cut after today's second round

Eagles Cancel Visit

Edmonton Eagles won't be in town today to play Victoria Royals in Western Canada Soccer League action.

Eagle president Peter Ternowski announced Friday that the weekend trip, to have included a game Sunday in Vancouver, had been cancelled because of financial difficulties.

He said that the club is considering dropping out of the league and that a decision would be made next week.

All-Island Final Assured

Fred Sallis of Victoria Lawn Bowling Club ensured an all-Vancouver Island "A" final in the singles competition of the Greater Victoria District's annual tournament with 16-13 win Friday over Tom Owen of South Vancouver at the Oak Bay greens.

Sallis will meet the winner of today's semi-final between Harry Tuck of Nanaimo and Percy Hawes of Burnside.

In a "B" semi-final, George Coufu of New Westminster downed Jack Wallace of Oak Bay, 15-7, and will meet the winner between Joe Patelli of Seattle and John Green of Oak Bay.

ALSO IN FINALS

Danny Millar edged Allan Jones, 15-14, in an all-Victoria club semi-final match in the "C" division. Millar will meet Dan Kirton of Vancouver's Dunbar club, who took a 15-2 decision over Ernie Wakefield of Victoria West.

Tom Dixon's Nanaimo triples rink defeated Alex Donald's Burnside threesome, 22-15, Friday and will take on Hector Tapp's Victoria rink in today's final. Tapp beat Bert Corcoran of South Vancouver, 21-9.

Veteran Californian In Three Net Finals

Merwin Miller of Los Angeles has a chance to show the youngsters in the B.C Open Centennial tennis tournament at Victoria Racquet Club a thing or two.

Miller made it to today's senior singles and senior men's doubles finals and has a chance to add the open mixed doubles title to his achievements, after winning three semi-final matches Friday.

In the singles competition for men over 45 years, Miller will meet Will Lotter of Davis, California, at 12:45 pm.

At 2:30 he will team with Bill Klein of Vancouver, Wash, to take on two Seattle finalists, Les Cribbey and Cliff Hedger, in the senior doubles. Miller's final match will begin at 4:00 when he partners Evelyn Houseman of Los Angeles for the open mixed doubles title against Hedy Jackson of Portland and Mike Mullen of Philadelphia.

Manual Castenada of Mexico, who defeated Peruvian Felix Ponti, 6-2, 6-4, meets unseeded Avery Rush of Amarillo, Texas, a 6-3, 6-3 victor over Steve Bartlett of Hawaii, in the men's open final at 12:45.

In men's open doubles, Mullen and Hank Moon defeated Bob Benton and Al Stultz, 6-2, 6-4, Friday and will meet Texans Rush and Ed Innerarity, who reached the final on Thursday.

Miller and Mrs. Houseman were 6-3, 6-2 winners over Mrs. Hill and Moon while Mrs. Jackson and Mullen downed Dean and Sybille Brinkman, 6-4, 6-2, in the other semi-final match.

Swimmers, Equestrians Win Golds for Canada

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Leslie Cliff of Vancouver became Canada's first double gold-medal winner of the Pan-American Games Friday night when she won the women's 200-metre individual medley and swam a strong butterfly leg as the Canadian swimmers defeated the favored United States team in the 400 medley relay.

Earlier in the day, three Canadian riders, two of them girls, won another gold medal when they were the only team to complete the punishing three-day event in equestrian competition.

In all, the Canadians collected nine medals during the day, raising their total to 10 gold, eight second-place silver and 23 third-place bronze.

When the boxing tournament ends, light middleweight Bernard Guidon of Thunder Bay, will collect another bronze as one of the losers in the semi-finals. Emeterio Villaneuva of Mexico scored a technical knockout victory over the 28-year-old mechanic in the third round.

FAR AHEAD

With 112 events completed, the U.S. led with 60 gold, 42 silver and 27 bronze for a total of 129. Cuba, limited to a single gold Friday, had 19 gold, 38 silver and 17 bronze, totalling 74 to Canada's 41.

Backstroker Donna Marie Gurr of Vancouver, breaststroker Jane Wright of Toronto and freestyler Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., completed the winning relay team as the Canadians shut out the U.S. in the only two women's events on the first day of the swim program.

BRONZE FOR HUTTON

American swimmers won the three men's event with veteran Ralph Hutton of Campbell River capturing a bronze in the 200-metre freestyle and Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., coming in third in the 100-metre backstroke.

The 16-year-old Miss Cliff edged Susie Atwood of the U.S. in the individual medley by a scant three-tenths of a second but the Canadians had a solid 1.3-second margin over the American girls in the relay.

ALL ALONE

Despite the loss by disqualification of their most experienced rider, the Canadians finished all by themselves in the team competition of the three-day event as no other country had the required three riders left by the end of the gruelling competition.

Clint Banbury, 21, of Wolseley, Sask., also took the second-place silver in the individual standings of the event, which pits the riders against one another in dressage, cross-country and jumping on successive days.

OTHER RIDERS

Banbury's fellow-champions in the team competition were Cathy Wedge, 20, of Saskatoon and Wendy Irving, 19, of Hull.

The senior member of the team, Canadian three-day champion Ron Hahn of Belle Plaine, Sask., was disqualified Thursday on a charge of ill-treating his horse.

THIRD THREE TIMES

Weightlifter Wayne Wilson of Vancouver won three bronze medals in the middle heavyweight division, finishing third in the snatch, clean and jerk and total lift behind two American opponents.

Argentina snapped Canada's four-game winning streak in field hockey with a 1-0 victory that sent the powerful Argentines to the top of the standings of the eight-country competition with two rounds remaining in the round-robin competition. The Argenines have four victories and a tie in their five starts to Canada's 4-1 record.

DOMINATE SHOOTING

The Americans continued to dominate the shooting competition as U.S. marksmen took the individual and team gold medals in the three-position small-bore rifle event.

The Canadian team was fifth and Alf Mayer of Kitchener, Ont., in sixth place, was the top individual shooter.

Cuba won Friday's first gold medal, breaking the Games record in the 100-kilometre team time trial, first event on the cycling program.

RECORD SHATTERED

The Cubans covered the distance, about 62½ miles, in two hours, 11 minutes, 11 seconds ahead of Colombia and Argentina.

The first six teams, including fifth-place Canada, exceeded the previous mark of 2:20.49 set by the Argentines in the 1967 Games at Winnipeg.

STRONG OPPOSITION

Canada drew a strong opponent in the opening round of the six-team final soccer pool today. The Canadians faced Argentina, which came through its three preliminary games with two wins and a draw. Canada had a 2-1 record in the preliminaries.

The United States, also with a 2-1 record, will be Canada's second-round opponent Sunday.

Unbeaten Cuba continued to pull away from the opposition in the baseball tournament with a 7-4 win over Canada.

The Canadians managed 11 hits off Bruadilio Vinent, the same number given up by Fred Cardwell of Regina, who went all the way for Canada. But Cardwell gave up a pair of home runs and was betrayed by five errors by his mates.

It was the fifth win for the Cubans and the loss evened Canada's record at 3-3.

The U.S. fell two games behind Cuba, losing 4-5 to the Dominican Republic.

Races Still Possible In Three Divisions

Major League baseball may yet have some real pennant races this season, perhaps as many as three out of the possible four instead of possibly one as has been the case up until now.

Boston Red Sox, who have been within hoping distance most of the season, missed a chance to gain Friday night but there were continuing signs that San Francisco Giants, and even Pittsburgh Pirates, might be about to get a serious challenge.

Only Oakland Athletics, far ahead in a division which hasn't been able to produce a potential challenger this season, can be almost totally unworried.

LOSE GROUND

Both the Giants, who have followed an erratic course all year, and the Pirates, who have been struggling to play .500 baseball for a couple of weeks, lost ground Friday.

The Giants took a 12-8 pounding from St. Louis' streaky Cardinals and the Pirates were edged out by Philadelphia Phillies, 3-2.

That left the Cards within seven games of the Pirates and the Giants only five and a half game ahead of the idle Los Angeles Dodgers, who are only four games in arrears on the losing side.

And the margin remained at four and a half games in the American League East, both the Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles going down.

Making a second bid this season to regain their lost National League glory, the Cardinals collected eight consecutive singles in a nine-run fifth inning which did in the slumping Giants.

A two-run eighth-inning home run by rookie Willie Motanez made winners out of the Phillies and wrecked Dock Ellis' bid for a 16th victory.

OTHER GAMES

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds were 9-1 winners over Montreal Expos, New York Mets handled Atlanta Braves by the same score and San Diego Padres nipped Houston Astros, 4-3.

Features of the three games were the pitching of Tom Seaver and Don Gullett and a show of old-time power by the Reds.

Seaver struck out 11 to take the strikeout lead with 188, passing Ferguson Jenkins, who has whiffed 184 batters this season. Seaver struck out six of seven batters in one streak.

HOMER POWER

Gullett, a 20-year-old right-hander, held Expos to four hits in boosting his record to 12-4. He was backed by home runs from George Foster, who connected with two runners on base, and Lee May, Johnny Bench and Tony Perez.

Hard hitting by New York Yankees and good pitching by Joe Coleman made it a markime night for the Red Sox and Orioles.

Bobby Murcer, who included a three-run homer among his, and rookie Ron Blomberg each had three hits for the Yankees in a 12-3 romp over Orioles.

Coleman outpitched Boston ace Ray Culp to bring Detroit Tigers a 2-0 win. Norm Cash's 24th home run, hit in the eighth inning after Willie Horton singled, broke the scoreless tie.

Saanich Club Scores Win

BURNABY — McLaren Construction of Saanich defeated New Westminster, 11-4, Friday in the opening day of the B.C. peewee lacrosse championship at Burnaby Arena.

North Burnaby trounced Richmond, 19-8, in the other game Friday in the four-team, round-robin tournament. Saanich meets Richmond today starting at 2 p.m.

Saanich goalkeeper Steve Hanna was outstanding, making 32 stops.

English Batsmen In Record Stand

MANCHESTER (Reuter) — A record eight-wicket stand of 168 by Ray Illingworth and Peter Lever lifted England to a first-innings total of 386 on the second day of the second cricket test against India here Friday.

When poor light, followed by heavy rain, ended play an hour and a half before the scheduled close, India was eight for no wicket in reply.

Illingworth, the England captain who made 107 — his second test hundred — and fast-bowler Lever came together Thursday with England struggling at 187 for seven.

They took the total to 219 by the close Thursday night and it was not until shortly before tea Friday that they were parted at 355 when Illingworth was out after batting for 279 minutes.

It was a splendid innings by the England captain, full of defiant strokes and a masterpiece of concentration. He hit eight fours and a six off medium-pacer Abid Ali, the man responsible for England's disastrous start Thursday when it slumped to 41 for four.

Pretty Louise Larochelle poses with title trophy

Quebec Miss Wins Junior Golf Crown

By JIM TANG

Louise Larochelle, the long-hitting 1970 Quebec champion who failed to make her provincial team this year because of an amazing three-hole streak of bad golf, won the Canadian junior championship Friday at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Ahead from the start, the poised, pleasant 18-year-old from the Quebec City suburb of Ste. Foy finished eight strokes ahead of Debby Savoy, Quebec team member from Montreal and Suzanne Ethier of Timmins, Ont.

UNWORRIED 84

Miss Larochelle, who started with an 81 on Wednesday and followed with 80 on Thursday, finished the 54-hole tournament with 245 after an unworried 84 on Friday.

Six strokes behind the runners-up came Diane Mercure, Quebec team member from Montreal. Sharon Janzen, a team member from Prince George, led the B.C. contingent with a fifth-place 261

Karen Hulteng of Hayden Lake, Idaho, a semi-finalist in the 1971 Pacific Northwest Golf Association junior tournament, and Ruth Maxwell, the New Brunswick champion from Sackville who also won the Ontario title this year, were next at 262

Robyn Walton of Clarkston, Wash., followed with 263, Valerie White of Vancouver ninth at 264 and Carole Morrissey of Pentiction was 10th at 265.

DOUBLY DETERMINED

Miss Larochelle, double determined to win because of her failure in the Quebec team trials, was never in serious danger of losing her lead during the last round although she did run into considerable trouble early on the back nine.

"I was nervous on the first nine," she said, but she played it well and made the turn in a two-over-par 38 which brought an 11-stroke lead.

That brought the relaxation and the resultant lack of concentration which she admits plagues her from time to time.

OUT OF BOUNDS

She drove out of bounds on the 10th hole for a double-bogey seven, and while she did get a stroke back with a birdie three on the 11th, she went four over par on the 12th hole.

She started it by hooking her drive deep into the woods and getting the kind of lie which made her try to get out with her putter. She didn't make it but chipped out on the next shot.

Trying to recover, she went for the green with a wood and again hooked into trees. She chipped out, got on in six and then three-putted for a nine.

"I wasn't concentrating," she related ruefully "I should have used an iron the first time I came out on the fairway."

It was not concentrating, she said, which resulted in her going 16 over par on the eighth, ninth and 10th holes in the first round of the team trials, missing selection by three strokes and being forced to pay her way to Victoria.

This time, she had enough margin to ease through although she followed with bogeys on the 13th and 14th holes. She lost only one more stroke to par on the last four holes and finished with a flourish by sinking a long par putt on the last hole.

Miss Savoy, whose 10 handicap made finishing as runner-up quite an accomplishment, started the day closest to the new champion, being only six strokes in arrears. But she bogeyed the first three holes, went one over on the fifth, two over on the sixth and got a second seven on the ninth for a 45 which left her trailing by 13 strokes.

She steadied on the back nine and shot par golf for the first eight holes. Then she finished with a triple-bogey seven which forced her to share runner-up honors.

DOWNFALL EARLY

Miss Ethier's downfall actually came on opening day with a round of 91 which included seven sixes.

She came up with an 81 Thursday to start the last round trailing by 11 strokes and looked as if she might take a real run at the leader with a 4-4-3 start which picked up three strokes.

But Miss Ethier had a double-bogey five on the fourth hole, and while she got par fives on the fifth and sixth, she was 12 strokes down with 12 holes left. Miss Larochelle ended all doubts by parring four and shotting birdies on five and six.

Miss Mercure, who was seven strokes in arrears after two rounds and with a chance to challenge, was even further out of it when Miss Larochelle dropped her par putt on the fourth hole.

Miss Mecure opened 5-7-8-5 to start the fifth hole, which she bogeyed, 11 strokes over par and 20 strokes behind the leader.

Next game: Monday—B.C. LIONS at Winnipeg.

TORONTO — Toronto Argonauts parlayed their quarterback shuffle into a 22-17 victory over Saskatchewan's injury-ridden Roughriders on Friday night before a sellout crowd of 33,165.

It was the second win for the unbeaten Argos, now sharing first place in the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference with once-beaten Ottawa.

Saskatchewan, winner of the Western Conference last season with a 14-2 record, is now 1-3 after winning its first game. And, making the situation even worse, the Riders have been hard hit by injuries.

Four Riders left the field with injuries Friday, including quarterback Ron Lancaster, reported to have had the condition on his injured ribs worsened.

Valuable Al Ford, punter and two-way performer, and defence-back Henry Dorsch were forced out by knee injuries of still undetermined seriousness and halfback Bobby Thompson left after being shaken up and receiving a head out.

Strangely, Riders made their best challenge after the injuries, Bubba Wyche directing them to two touchdowns after it seemed Argos had it clinched.

FOLLOWED PLAN

Toronto coach Leo Cahill followed his announced intention of alternating quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton.

Theismann started and looked sharp in getting an immediate touchdown but Barton was the controls the next time Argos got the ball and Cahill continued to alternate in that manner.

The battle was hardly decisive. Both threw touchdown passes to Leon McQuay, the sensational import rookie halfback. And while Theismann had nine completions in 15 throws for 158 yards and Barton was four for six for 57 yards, the Notre Dame rookie had two throws intercepted.

CAUGHT FOUR PASSES

McQuay, who has four touchdowns from his two games as a pro, caught four passes for 85 yards and led his club rushing with 70 yards in 12 chances. Mel Profit was another big Argo gainer, getting 78 yards with five receptions.

McQuay's touchdown catches came at 5:45 of the first quarter and 14:02 of the second quarter. In between, Jack Abendschan of the Riders and newly-acquired Ivan MacMillan exchanged field goals and Argos had a 17-3 lead for the second half.

It became 21-3 in a hurry with the Riders conceding two safety touches in the first five minutes of the third quarter when their offence remained bogged down.

STARTED COMEBACK

Wyche replaced Lancaster and started a comeback by running three yards for a touchdown at 11:09 of the quarter.

The Saskatchewan attack stalled for a while and a point on MacMillan's wide field-goal try had Argos as 22-10 leaders when Wyche got things moving again and hit Silas McKinnie with a 30-yard scoring pass.

Jack Abendschan's second convert moved Riders to 17-22 and in position to win with a touchdown but they only got the ball once in the remaining 82 seconds and Argos easily held out.

MOVES TO TOP

Feature of the game from the Saskatchewan side was the performance of George Reed.

The veteran fullback, who got 116 yards on 16 carries, now holds the league record of 1984 career running plays, Johnny Bright held the record of 1969 and while he is still the all-time leader in yards gained rushing with 10,909, reed became the second CFL player to reach 10,000 yards and starts his next game at 10,085.

Cablevision Juniors slammed in seven runs in the top of the seventh inning after being tied, 5-5, after six innings to defeat Esquimalt Junior Combos, 12-7, at Bullen Park Thursday night.

But it wasn't enough to give the high-flying junior side a tie for the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League championship as Tillicum Athletic Club stayed two points clear with a 13-11 victory over Westendale Constructionettes at Beacon Hill Park.

The games rounded off the Women's League schedule and semi-final playoffs start next week.

Lake Cowichan Wins Opener

Romeo Krakowec slammed two home runs, driving in five runs, to help Budden's Sport Shop of Lake Cowichan to a 6-4 night in the opener of the Lower Island Senior "C" men's softball tournament at Heywood Avenue Park.

Langford Drywall, the defending champions, and Labatts start today's six-game schedule in the eight-team, double-knockout tourney at 8 a.m. Other teams participating are Bill's Men's Wear, Century Inn, Sooke Merchants and Gilmour Construction.

Krakowec unloaded a three-run blast in the fourth inning to help Lake Cowichan to a 4-2 lead. His two-run homer in the next inning gave the visitors a 6-2 edge.

Colwood rallied for two runs in the last inning on Jack Lundquist's two-out triple but winning-pitcher Art Watson got Bud Livingstone on an infield grounder to end the game.

See-Through Tent

Youngsters 'Cool It' At Rock Festival

MADOC, Ont. (CP) — A three-day rock festival on a backwoods farm near here got off to a "cool" start Friday with about 3,000 young people huddled together in sleeping bags or around camp fires trying to stay warm in 58-degree weather.

One group, hired by the festival promoters to keep the grounds clean, stayed warm by walking along the line of tents and collecting empty beer bottles and putting them in green plastic garbage bags.

Privacy seemed of little concern to most of the campers. One carried it to the extreme, with a tent-covering matching the mood of the day — see-through plastic.

The James Quinlin family, on whose farm the festival is being held, estimated that as many as 20,000 fans might turn out this weekend. At 8 a.m. today, only about 3,000 were on hand.

Officials have expressed fear that by tonight swelling crowds could jam the narrow, winding road leading to the farm and facilities could prove inadequate if 20,000 turn up.

Hastily organized guards watched the wooded boundaries today after most of Thursday's crowd over-ran rail fences to avoid the $12 entrance fee.

So far services and facilities have been adequate at the farm 30 miles north of Belleville. Water tank trucks from this village have filled the tanks scattered around the farm, but inadquate privies have largely been neglected in favor of the woods, reporters said.

Posts and cedar rails from fences hacked out of the wilderness 100 years ago disappeared fast Thursday as youths used them to put up tents or fuel camp fires.

Bands are scheduled to play on the rickety, home-made stage starting at 2 p.m. today. The Children of God, a fundamentalist religious group from Detroit, entertained the audience during the supper hour Thursday evening.

Reporters heard drug pedlars softly calling "NBA or grass" to those strolling along the row of tents. A sign advertised beer at 50 cents a bottle and wine at $3.50.

"Hi, we love you," one sign painted on a piece of broken-down machinery proclaimed.

Peace symbol sweat shirts, leather accessories and hashish were for sale. A few complaints were heard about the high price of food in the concessions but most fans were well supplied with food they brought with them.

Belleville's youth hostel, which has operated this summer at about 40 per cent of its capacity, is filled with transients on their way to the festival. Many of them carried rough sketches of rear approaches to the farm.

The Ontario Hospital Services Commission has set up a hospital geared to serve a population of 50,000. It has two operating tables to handle major surgery. An ambulance helicopter, donated by Bell Aircraft, is standing by to airlift serious cases to Belleville, Peterborough or Kingston.

So far the hospital has treated a dozen drug cases and minor hurts, including one man whose cat had bitten him.

The provincial police, set up in an abandoned school house two miles south of the farm, will place check points on the approach road in an effort to keep traffic flowing.

Madoc Township and Hasting County made unsuccessful efforts to halt the festival — by an injunction which was upheld in the courts and then over-ruled.

Township residents, once bitterly opposed to the festival, have decided to roll with the punch. Two general stores in the hamlet of Queensboro, three miles from the site, are planning to stay open evenings and all day Sunday and have laid in extra supplies for festival fans.

Designer Laughs If Pants Fall

By LINDA DEUTSCH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the star's pants fall down or the leading lady trips on her dress, most costume designers cry. Michael Travis laughs.

Travis is the prolific designer who turns out 350 wildly colored, flamboyant costumes per week for the Laugh-In television show.

He recalls the show on which comedian Don Rickles, dressed as a trapeze artist, almost lost his trousers.

"He kept tugging at them — it really made the scene funnier."

Laugh-In, the weekly variety-comedy series now in its fifth year on the air, hit it big with a format based on black-outs — one-minute gag scenes ending with a quick punchline.

Stars featured in each scene need new outfits.

Thus, Laugh-In uses perhaps more costumes than any running series on the air. Each segment also features musical production numbers which require identical fantasy-oriented costumes for stars, dancers and singers.

Travis recalls one such production for which he dressed everyone as Romanian gypsies. "The costumes were a real mish-mash. I rented red velvet boots that didn't fit anyone right. They kept falling down around their ankles while they danced. It was great."

When he's not working on Laugh-In, Travis designs elegant gowns for singer Dionne Warwick's night club act and period costumes for productions of the Hollywood Television Theatre.

Top Conductor Hopes To Wield Baton, Not Limp

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) — At age 72 and after major hip and shoulder operations, conductor Eugene Ormandy of the Philadelphia Orchestra is training for a return to the podium.

When he again takes up the baton, Ormandy is hoping his well-known limp will have vanished.

He is proud of his swift recovery and, in an interview, talked more of his medical history than of his music.

"You want to see my x-rays?" he asked.

He posed for photographs — over the protest of his wife, Gretel — while walking up a few stone steps in his garden, while mounted on an exercise bicycle, and while walking up and down a makeshift podium in the driveway of his home.

The fact that he agreed to the pictures and an interview was surprising, for Ormandy is a gruff perfectionist who guards the privacy of his summer home in the Berkshire Hills near Great Barrington.

Twice a day, Ormandy takes a large yellow rubber ball into the heated swimming pool in his front lawn, rests on it and pumps his legs as on a bicycle, and takes long walks and up and down on the podium.

"I work on the leg alone four hours a day," said Ormandy, who times his every movement.

Ormandy expects to return to conducting Aug. 28 at the Saratoga Performing Arts Centre in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., where the Philadelphia Orchestra is in summer residence.

Players Seen Fiddling

SHELBURNE, Ont. (CP) — About 100 persons from Canada and the United States are fiddling away the weekend in Shelburne, about 60 miles northwest of Toronto.

And what's more, about 5,000 other persons are watching them do it.

Three-time winner Graham Townsend of Toronto also is on hand but is ineligible to retain the championship. Three wins and contestants must yield the title.

The playdowns begin today with the finals scheduled for Saturday night.

Finalists compete in three classes — the women's division, the over -18 and under-18 divisions.

A total of $2,630 is up for grabs, with the big winner collecting $1,000—a far cry from the top prize of $200 when the contest started in 1950.

Untested Horses Not Allowed In

VANCOUVER (CP) — Horses will not be allowed entry into Canada after Aug. 14 unless they have undergone the Coggins test for equine infection anemia, more commonly known as swamp fever, Dr. J. J. Gilbert, assistant district veterinarian for the federal department of agriculture said Wednesday.

Too Tame for U.K. TV

Archie Bunker's Family Sets Englishmen Scoffing

By DON FREEMAN
(Copley News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — Perhaps, as Bernard Shaw once suggested, the English and the people of the U.S. are indeed divided by the same language. Now the English have just had their first glimpse at All in the Family, a big hit on our shores, and they are scoffing. The show, they insist, is just too tame for their tastes.

Too tame? All in the Family, this adventurously innovative, taboo-breaking, outrageously blunt and very funny series, is too tame?

But then, the British do have a certain proprietary interest in the evolution of All in the Family, which was adapted and revamped from a highly successful BBC series called Till Death Do Us Part. In the original English version, there was also an almost lovable bigot, a father named Alf, the prototype of our Archie Bunker.

Carroll O'Connor's portrayal of Archie, generally regarded here as a brilliant acting job, did win due praise from the London Times' TV critic as an "inspired transmutation" and "a performance of tremendous energy."

But for the rest of it, the paper's critic sniffed, "the pleasure in this series will be academic."

"God help America," snapped the London Daily Mirror's reviewer, "if they regard All in the Family as a biting, controversial comedy."

They have a way, the English do, of making us Colonials feel like slightly backward children. Biting and controversial is exactly what I had thought All in the Family was.

There was more from the Daily Mirror: "The jokes (I use the word generously) are all signaled by a dramatic pause for applause."

And: "All in the Family lacks the essential ingredient that made Till Death Do Us Part a real comedy. It lacks a belief in itself."

And from the equally snippy Daily Telegraph Review: "If the debt to Till Death Do Us Part can be disregarded, this series can be enjoyed as being well above the average of U.S. television comedy . . . which is not saying much but it saying something."

The foregoing is, of course, typical of the general candor and flippancy that rise to full flower in the English character — and, I should add, in their TV columns.

Well do I remember when the BBC displayed a show filmed in a nudist colony and entitled Take Off Your Clothes And Live. Mary Malone, reviewing the program in the Daily Mirror, observed brightly: "The perils of going out starkers are a revelation. Keeping a wary eye out for nettles and thistles is obvious enough but who would have dreamed the most dangerous job a naturist can do is fry sausages?"

And in The News of the World, one of the breeziest journals anywhere, TV critic Jack Miller relayed similar views.

"There were naturally bags of flesh on view but sadly most of it was middle-aged and wobbly," Miller grumbled. "I saw only two pretty girls. A cameraman went naked to photograph one, which I thought was funny . . . and the camera concentrated on the face of the other, which I thought was mean . . ."

Special Licence Deadline

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Friday urged drivers of buses, taxis and heavier trucks to apply for the special drivers' licence they will require after Sept. 1.

Drivers will have to pass a special skill test and will require a medical report to qualify.

The measures come into effect under a new system of classifying drivers' licences into six categories by the type of vehicle drivers are qualified to operate. The system is being adopted in all Canadian provinces.

McCormick, Mate in Final

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tony Bardsley and former-Victorian Don McCormick, of Vancouver, moved into the finals of the men's doubles event in the Canadian national tennis championships Friday with a pair of victories.

McCormick and Bardsley defeated professionals Reider Getz of Edmonton and Lindsey Straney of Calgary, 6-4, 6-3, in the semi-final after disposing of Peter Pospisil and Bill MacDonell of Toronto, 6-2, 9-7.

Ya-Ya Music Gets Beat From a Sledgehammer

GILLINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Little did electrician David McGregor know when he settled down to listen to some modern music on his new stereo record player, that the end was at hand.

His next door neighbor, 71-year-old Arthur Higgs, strode into David's room and shattered the turntable with a sledgehammer.

'That Could've Been a Tragedy'

Diners Scramble to Safety in City Blaze

Between 30 and 40 diners scrambled to safety Friday when a fire raged through the back section of a Victoria waterfront restaurant.

"That could have been a tragedy," Stan McLaren, assistant Victoria fire chief, said in an interview, surveying the scene of devastation at the Net Loft, 640 Montreal.

"Those people could have been trapped very, very easily," he said.

Beth Sephton, one of the waitresses, was working in the rear section of the restaurant when the fire broke out shortly after 7 p.m.

"I was serving on a table of nine people who had just sat down when I saw black smoke coming in through one of the windows," she told the Colonist.

"And then I saw the flames and I started herding people out," she said, still shaken from the experience.

She was assisted by waitress Peggy Rodway who was also in that part of the restaurant.

A third waitress, Diane Anderson, was standing in a doorway leading from the main section of the restaurant to the terrace when she noticed smoke and flames coming through the windows.

Peggy, Diane, Beth and crockery

"I ran in and helped shuffle all the people out. Yes, I was scared," she said.

McLaren said the fire started outside the building which is constructed of wooden boards. The cause was not known.

The fire was brought under control within 30 minutes, but there wasn't much left of the entire rear section of the restaurant.

The walls were completely gutted; windows had burst from the heat of the flames.

Blackened cups and saucers, broken cocktail glasses and the remainder of plates littered the charred tables.

Stan Booker, proprietor of the establishment, said he was glad the damage had been confined to the rear section only.

"The place looks bad, but I hope we'll be open for business by Saturday night . . . not in the terrace, of course," he said.

The building was insured, he said, and damage was estimated at $15,000.

Constable To Get $861 a Month

Police Unions Vote To Accept Pay Offer

By BRUCE LOWTHER

By an overwhelming margin of almost 88 per cent, members of the four Greater Victoria police unions voted Friday night to accept a 15-month wage increase of 12.2 per cent and end their long and often-stormy contract dispute with the four municipalities.

The vote was 120 to 17 in favor as the policemen took only 90 minutes in a meeting at the Union Centre on Quadra to approve a contract that will boost the key category of a first-class constable from last year's $728 a month to $861 as of next Jan. 1.

The settlement plan was worked out by B.C. mediation officer Clark Gilmour in a marathon all-day meeting Wednesday of the Victoria and Saanich police unions and commissions, and also includes what officials called "a slight improvement in annual leave."

The police commissions are expected to give their approval to the plan at meetings early next week.

The vote breakdown was surprising, with Victoria's policemen at the meeting in favor of the plan by 70-9, Saanich in favor 36-1, Esquimalt in favor 10-1 and Oak Bay casting four votes in favor and six against. The meeting had decided earlier a total majority would rule.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt's commissions have agreed to follow the Victoria and Saanich wage pattern. Some fringe items remain to be discussed in all four municipalities.

The settlement plan included a pay boost of 7.5 per cent as of last Jan. 1, raising a first-class constable to $782 a month from $728, then another 6.1 per cent as of July 1, making the figure $830, and a further 3.7 per cent next Jan. 1, boosting it to $861.

The contract expires March 31 next year and spokesmen for the four unions said they would return to the goal of pay parity with the Vancouver area when negotiations begin. A first-class constable in Vancouver earns $887 a month, that figure going into effect last July 1.

Police union members in the four municipalities had adopted a work-to-rules campaign during most of the 10 weeks of negotiations, with the chief result being reduced revenue as police gave warnings instead of making arrests. That campaign is expected to end at once.

In a few weeks, union leaders will start work on the next negotiations. Submissions for the next contract, starting next April 1, are due in the hands of the four police commissions in December.

Non-Capital Murder Case

Boy's Case Returned To Juvenile Court

A B.C. Supreme Court justice ruled Friday that a 15-year-old boy charged with non-capital murder early June 19 in Saanich must be returned to Victoria juvenile court, where the maximum penalty is a $25 fine and detention until the 21st birthday.

The ruling was made by Justice Peter Seaton after a hearing in chambers at the Law Courts Building and sources said it does not definitely mean the boy's fate must be decided in the juvenile division.

The boy was 14 when he was charged after the stabbing death of Miss Mary Karpenic, 58, in her apartment at 3333 Seaton in Saanich.

He was first charged in juvenile court but the judge there, Harold Alder, decided the boy should be raised to Victoria Provincial (adult) court for a preliminary hearing before possible later trial before a Supreme Court judge and jury.

The sources said the main reason for Alder's decision to issue a raising order was because he felt he lacked authority to commit any juvenile directly to a detention or treatment centre in such serious cases.

Defence lawyer Rodney Taylor appealed the raising order and Seaton quashed it Friday, sending the case back to Alder. But it was understood Seaton did not say Alder must make a final decision.

Instead, the juvenile court judge apparently will have to reconsider all reasons for and against raising, including the fact that a juvenile can be committed to a treatment or detention centre through an outside agency.

The sources said the hearing Friday discussed a ruling made July 23 by B.C. Supreme Court Justice George Gregory after a similar hearing on the case of an 18 year-old youth.

He was 17 when he was charged with attempted murder after an attack on the night of March 4-5 against Fiona Fay Boucher, 2, in her home at 643 John.

The youth was first heard in adult court, returned to juvenile court because of the lengthy court dispute over 17-year-olds and then raised by Alder to adult court on roughly the same grounds as those in the 15-year-old's case.

Defence lawyer Cecil Branson appealed Alder's order raising the 18-year-old and Gregory quashed the order, sending the case back to the juvenile court judge for reconsideration.

The sources said Alder still has the power to send both youths back to adult court if he feels the move is necessary. But the power-to-committal problem cannot be the sole reason.

There was no word as to when the 15-year-old will make his next court appearance, although he is expected to return to juvenile court next week. Next move in the 18-year-old's case was said to be a hearing set for Aug. 17 in the same court.

Bail has been set at $1,000 for the 18-year-old but has not been posted. The younger boy is being held without bail.

Saanich Ban Continuing

Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland announced Friday that because of continued warm, dry weather, the ban on all backyard burning, including that in incinerators, will continue in Saanich.

Famous Composer Joins UVic Staff

Two new appointments, announced Friday by the UVic music department, will make the university "a major centre for the study of composition in North America," according to Philip Young, department chairman.

One of the appointees, Rudolf Komorous, is an internationally known Czech composer who emigrated to North America in 1968. A native of Prague and graduate of both its academy and conservatory, he was first bassoonist in the Prague Orchestra, co-founder and director of the Musica Viva Pragensis and won first prize at the Concours International Competition in Geneva.

Brian Cherney, a native of Peterborough, Ont., and considered to be an outstanding Canadian composer, is the other appointee. Commissions awarded him have come from the CBC, the Stratford Festival and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

The holder of two Canada Council doctoral fellowships, Cherney has also worked at the Bayerische State Library in Munich and the New Music Centre in Darmstadt, Germany. His string quartet was the recent winner of the McMaster University Chamber Music competiton and has been performed since to great acclaim by the celebrated Czech String Quartet.

While he regards himself primarily as a composer, Cherney's doctorate is in musicology and he is a pianist as well.

'Urgent' Zoning Changes?

Minister's Statement Confusing

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's call Friday to municipal and regional authorities to "urgently" consider zoning changes in preparation for the introduction of a new capital gains tax brought puzzled reaction from several Capital Region mayors.

A letter sent by the minister said it was "essential" that the position of property owners should not be prejudiced "by your action or lack action" on approval of community plans and re-zoning laws.

The letter further said that each regional board and municipal council is "immediately and urgently requested to examine the land inventory under its jurisdiction."

Esquimalt Mayor Arthur Young told the Colonist Friday the letter apparently does not apply to his municipality.

"Our assessments are always up to date and we don't rezone a property until an application to have it rezoned is made. Then it is judged on its merits.

Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith said he has not received anything official on the proposed rezoning and his council is not contemplating any changes.

"This municipality has a 25-year plan all laid out," he said, "and we are not going to change the plan to help somebody that is speculating in land.

On Valuation Day, expected some time before Jan. 1, all property other than owner-occupied family homes will be valued for purposes of the new capital gains tax. The lower the value on Valuation Day, the higher the taxable increment later if subsequent rezoning increases the value of the land.

North Saanich Mayor J. B. Cumming emphasized that no council "impulsively" rezones property.

"Rezoning of property is done for the benefit of the municipality not just the individual — and certainly not to beat any federal taxes."

He noted there is a governed procedure for rezoning of property.

First an application for rezoning of a property is made. Council may approve it in principle, but no decision can be made until after a public hearing of all persons deemed to be affected by the proposed rezoning has been held, the mayor explained.

"The minister's letter doesn't make sense," Cumming concluded.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said she did not believe a municipality should operate in the way Campbell seemed to be suggesting.

"We certainly do not operate this way in Oak Bay . . . all rezoning applications are judged on their merits."

Mrs. Elford said she didn't believe in "blanket zoning" especially in her municipality.

"I can't see the wisdom of what the minister is getting at," she said and added that if such quick rezoning was done "some terrible mistakes could be made which we would have to pay for later."

Drug Price Analysis: Great Gaps Spotted

Federal consumer affairs department, in its continuing program of analysing drug prices, reports a great divergence in the costs of a widely-used tranquillizer.

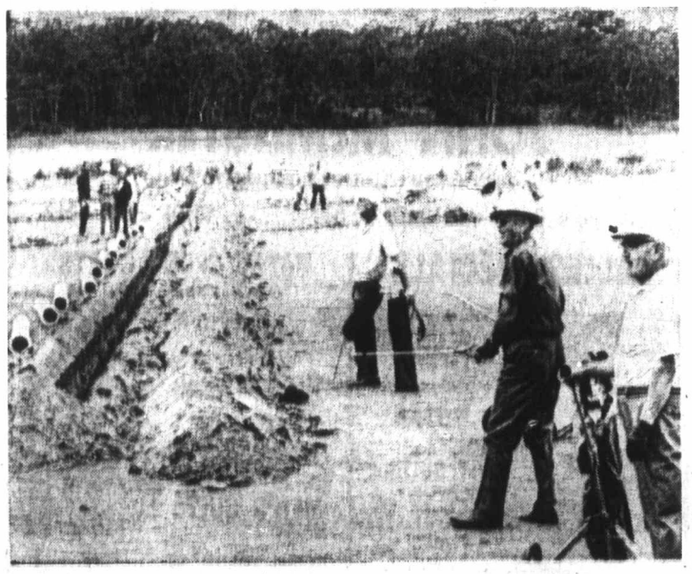
Reserpine is one of the products reviewed in the current issue of Rx Bulletin, published by the Food and Drug Directorate.

The least expensive reserpine is that produced by Barlowe Cote Drug Laboratories and Alpha Drug Corp. Ltd. A pharmacist ordering the drug from either of those firms can get it for .2 cents a tablet when it is bought in quantities of 1,000.

There are 33 pharmaceutical manufacturers who are producing reserpine tablets for the Canadian market and the prices range as high as 2.5 cents a tablet, which is the charge set by Ciba Pharmaceuticals Ltd. for purchases of bottles of 100.

All of the reserpine reviewed by the consumer affairs department was acceptable to the Food and Drug Directorate.

In addition to the cost of the drug, the pharmacist charges a customer a "professional service fee."



Underground Irritation

Long, narrow ditch in middle of 16th fairway at Cedar Hill Golf Course in Saanich provides temporary hazard for golfers Friday morning. Fairways of Saanich-owned golf course, which are more than 50 years old, have never been watered except by rain. When all four phases of underground irrigation system are completed in five years, fairways will be automatically watered during nights. Undaunted golfer winding up for shot is Bill Fennell flanked by Blyth White (left) and Arthur Dutton (right).—(Jim Ryan)

Walking Events Aim For Project Funds

Two walkathons are to be staged in Greater Victoria this month and organizers for both events are appealing to the public for support.

The first walkathon is planned for Aug. 15 by the Victoria West Community Development Committee to help raise funds for the group's new neighborhood centre at 519 Craigflower Road.

"We have a big plumbing and wiring bill coming in shortly and we need money to pay it," Marion Jones, chairman of the group, told the Colonist Friday.

"Marchers are to assemble at 8 a.m. in front of the centre; they'll walk along a route that will be established later," she said.

The committee was formed last year by a group of Victoria West citizens who said they wanted to "help find things to do for our residents."

Victoria city council agreed to let the group use the city-owned house at 519 Craigflower, adjacent to Bamfield Park.

Mrs. Jones said the committee hopes to have the centre in operation by Aug. 15.

"We have all sorts of activities lined up for all age groups from eight-years-old to senior citizens and the response has been fantastic," she said.

The committee hopes to raise at least $1,500 through the walkathon, she said.

Dave Bartleman, new chief of the Tsartlip band, said the 20-mile walk will start at the band's campsite, 7449 West Saanich Road and wind through Central and North Saanich.

Walkathon forms may be obtained at the campsite office or by writing to the Tsartlip band council, Box 53, Brentwood Bay.

There is no age limit, but those under 16 are asked to obtain their parents' written permission.

Culprit Fools Police

Saanich Police Inspector Harry Adams turned cowboy Friday, but it was a short-lived career and not a very successful one.

At about 7 a.m., he spotted a horse without either rider or saddle galloping down MacKenzie toward Quadra. Adams gave chase on foot, drew close to the steed on two occasions, but couldn't catch it because the horse had no bridle and Adams didn't have a lariat.

Finally, the horse was roped by its owner, Julian Mazur, 970 Ridgeway, who said neighborhood children had opened the gate to the horse's paddock.

Parents' Bed Not for Child

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: That 11-year-old girl who was worried that her eight-year-old sister was ruining her parents' sex life because she kept wanting to sleep with them was mighty interesting. I lived through this same sad story and I know all the sick implications. My own daughter was a little younger when she began to complain of stomach aches, headaches, nightmares — anything to get into our bed. I refused to allow it, but my husband was an easy mark. He used to get out of bed and sit on the couch with Glenda until the wee hours of the morning.

Later we were divorced. Glenda chose to stay with her father rather than with me because she "liked him better." Today she is a teenager, and pulling the same stunts to punish him for remarrying — only on a grander scale. She has run away from home, become sexually promiscuous and attempted suicide.

Glenda and her father now are getting phychiatric help in an attempt to straighten out their relationship. It might be too late, but at least they are working at it. Please advise the parents of that eight-year-old to see that she gets psychiatric help NOW.—Daughter's Rival.

Dear Rival: I have dealt with this problem in the column on numerous occasions — and have always suggested professional counselling. Thanks for the close-to-home testimony.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for 15 years. We have four children. I love my husband very much, so please don't tell me to leave him. I'd rather die. We never had a honeymoon. He has never bought me a birthday present or even an anniversary card. We have the same furniture we started with — even curtains, so you can imagine what our place looks like.

I have worked ever since we got married, taking time out only to have the kids. I turn every cheque over to my husband. He lets the bills go until we get notices from collecting agencies. Then he writes cheques for more money than we have in the bank, and I have to go to my boss for a loan. I can't ever afford to buy the medicine my doctor says I must have.

Last night I told my husband he was driving me nuts. He sat down with a pencil and paper and showed me that we could be out of hock in three months. I've heard this before. If he hasn't been able to manage it in 15 years, how can he do it in three months? What should I do?—Two Thirds Crazy In Lafayette.

Dear La: Only two-thirds? your percentages are off. A woman who turns her paycheque over to a man who is such a lousy manager and not leave herself enough money to buy medicine, needs a lot more help than Ann Landers can give her. My advice is to get some counselling and find out what's the matter with YOU that you put up with such treatment.

Dear Ann Landers: I've got a word for the lady in Shaker Heights who became very upset because her friend kept bragging to everyone that her daughter Rosalie was engaged to a doctor, when the news got out that the doctor was "only a dentist" Shaker Heights popped a gusset.

Please tell Mrs. Shaker Heights that Rosalie's mother has nothing to worry about. I received my dentist's bill this morning and a living he'll make.—Superior, Wisc.

Dear Superior: And why shouldn't he? He's entitled.

Peterson Order Prevents Inmate's Wedding

VANCOUVER (CP) — Friday was to have been the wedding day for Pat Isherwood and Brian Slobodian, 21, but the groom was missing because of an order by the British Columbia corrections branch.

Slobidian, serving eight months definite and 12 months indeterminate for possession of LSD for the purpose of trafficking, had his expected weekend leave cancelled just 24 hours before the scheduled wedding.

The cancellation order followed a statement by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson that 11 drug pushers are the worst criminals in the country" and should have all parole and sentence remissions cancelled. His statement was made in a telegram to Federal Justice Minister John Turner.

Dr. Malcolm Matheson, deputy director of corrections, said the concellation of Slobodian's leave was a direct result of the statement by Peterson.

Last week prison officials had allowed Slobodian more than the regulation number of visits so that wedding arrangements could be completed.

The couple is expecting a baby in January.

Bicycle Week Starts Sunday

Saanich alderman Frank Waring will officially open Bike Week Sunday when he starts the 18-mile bike tour sponsored by Victoria Wheelers Cycle Club.

Waring is a former racing cyclist himself.

The tour will leave the University of Victoria's Centennial Stadium parking lot at 9 a.m. Sunday. It will pass through Cordova Bay and Saanichton before reaching Sidney.

Riders have been invited to stop for refreshments at Saanichton and will be welcomed at the Central Saanich municipal hall by Mayor Archibald Galbraith. Members of the Central Saanich council will join the tour at that point and continue on to Sidney.

A genuine 1867 bicycle will be on display at the stadium and a number of riders of antique bicycles from the Mainland are expected to bring their machines over to join the trip. Purpose of Bike Week is to publicize the need for bicycle paths in the Greater Victoria area.

Parties Staved Starvation

By JODY JACOBS
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Marie Sawyer became a party girl the hard way. By working at it. That's her business —arranging parties for one guest or 20,000. The number doesn't count. What matters to Marie is how inventive she can be. And getting a free hand with the decor, the food, the music.

Marie has a dazzling smile, a quick wit and a memory that's like a bank for party details. She remembers everything — big and little details, anecdotes — and enjoys the retelling almost as much as the actual experience.

A book seemed to her to be a natural. So she is finishing up the last few chapters and preparing to take the manuscript off to the publishing market. She's calling it Characters and Canapes and it's bound to be amusing as well as instructive. Each chapter will deal with a specific party — a real one — step by step. The menu will follow plus all the recipes. Marie is very enthusiastic about sharing her experiences.

Her career actually started on a dare. "My father (Chicago businessman) had sent me to the most expensive schools where I was a music major and also studied journalism (but I still can't punctuate). He said I couldn't make a living, that I'd starve to death."

She won the bet by getting a job as a federal investigator. Not too long after, while staying with a friend in Long Beach, Calif., the two of them decided that "no one else knew any more about giving parties than we did. And that's how this business began."

She remembers that after the first wedding we did I swore I was through. But a sense of humor kept me going."

Since then there have been some memorable highlights.

Her party for one she calls "the funniest." That was in December, a very rainy month, when she totaled 79 parties. "A woman called me from New York and asked me to do a surprise birthday party for a friend who lived in Los Angeles. I decided we couldn't make any money on this party, so why not go all the way out.

"He lived on the top of a hill in a tiny apartment. His kitchen was the size of a small closet. We had Piper Heidsieck champagne, filet, fresh asparagus, complete silver and crystal and china for one. Then the guest of honor arrived, promptly went out again and came back with this girl. The butler who had to crouch down behind a cabinet to keep out of the way when he wasn't serving, managed shomehow. But the girl had to drink her champagne out of a jelly glass."

Although Marie masterminded the whole party, she never did meet the man, "and I'd give my life to have seen him."

Bette Davis was one of her earliest customers and remains one of her favorites. "The first party we did for her was on the fourth of July. She wanted a box lunch and we did the whole thing in Uncle Sam hats — cornish hens, cucumbers. We've done a million for her since." That fourth of July picnic will be included in the book.

After working on parties all day, does Marie enjoy going to them? "Oh yes. I feel wonderful at parties someone else has arranged. I couldn't care less about what's happening. I just enjoy myself."

Moon and Parsley Replacing Stork?

LONDON (UPI) — Want a baby? Sow some parsley seed when there is a full moon.

Travel sickness a problem? If you're a woman, put nutmeg in your bra. Or if a child, try sitting on a newspaper.

Have a sore throat? Tie a stocking with uncooked bacon fat around your neck for two or three days.

Although not exactly scientific, some British newspaper readers say these home remedies work. Letters this week to the Daily Mirror and The Sun passed on dozens of such tips to fellow readers.

"J.B." of London wrote that after four years he and his wife were unable to have a much-wanted baby. "Then an old woman said to me 'if you want your wife to have a child, wait for a full moon and sow some parsley seed in the evening.'

"I thought 'what utter rot' but just for a joke, I did as the old woman advised. Two months later my wife became pregnant."

Travel sickness bothered the wife of B. Rutland of Edgeware, one day becoming so bad he had to stop their car in a country lane.

"A passing gypsy woman told my wife she should never travel without nutmeg in her bra," Rutland said. "She took the advice and has never since suffered."

Mrs. A. W. Derry of London had this solution to the problem: "we cured our son of car sickness by sitting him on a newspaper every time we traveled."

For a sore throat cure, "Mrs. B." of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne suggested: "Put some uncooked fat bacon in a stocking, tie it round your neck, and keep it there for two or three days. I know this works because I have tried it."

Phosphate Soap Already Cut

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) Officials of Best Line Products here say they are disappointed that one of their products was included in a federal list of laundry products whose phosphate content exceeds the 20 per cent limit set last year by the Canada Water Act.

They say the product, B-7, has not been manufactured for more than a year and was replaced by a new product, B-70, which contains less than one-per-cent phosphates.

Toastmistresses Not Allowed

CALGARY (CP) — There was no toast to women's liberation at the Toastmasters International convention Thursday as members voted against membership for women.

Delegates considered the matter for the first time and 80 per cent were opposed to female members.

Soaps Kept Clean

OTTAWA (CP) — Laundry detergent manufacturers have made sincere efforts to comply with federal restrictions on the phosphate content of their products, a spokesman for the federal environment department said today.

In an interview, he expressed optimism that three manufacturers whose products exceeded the restrictions in preliminary tests would voluntarily reduce the phosphate content to permissible levels, but as a last resort they could be prosecuted.

The Canada Water Act provides for penalties of up to $5,000 a day for non-compliance with the regulations.

Tables released by the department Tuesday showed only four of 91 brand names tested were above the 20-per cent level for phosphates: Val-U at 22.1 per cent, Laundre X at 21.5, both products of Canada Packers, Best-Line B-7 at 21, a product of Bestline Products of Canada now off the market, and Control at 20.2, a product of Diversey Canada Ltd.

A llama for the home?

Eleven Owned by Island Family

Llama Suitable As Family Pet

Dorothy Wrotnowski

Wondering what to get as a pet for your children? Why not a llama? Sound far fetched? Not at all, llama pets are becoming quite popular especially south of the border.

You won't have to go to South America to get one of these animals, either. There are 11 of them making a picturesque sight on the fields at the Edwin R. Jackson home at the end of Kilmalu Road, just north of Mill Bay. They belong to Mr. and Mrs. Derek Jackson.

It was 10 years ago that the Jacksons acquired their first pair of llamas from the Vancouver zoo. For three years, although the llamas made themselves at home and appeared contented, no babies were born. Seven years ago the first baby llama came into the world at the Jackson farm and since that time eight more have been born. Two more babies were born this year and there may still be more to come.

That is the main reason the Jacksons are thinking of parting with a few; if the llamas keep producing at this increased rate they'll overrun the pasture.

The llamas are easy to raise and make very good pets the Jacksons say. A grown llama can jump a seven-foot fence but they don't stray. They like staying around home.

Most of the Jackson llamas are a light brown shade of two-toned, white and brown. And each has its own personality. One of this year's babies thinks that a pinto horse is his mother but his own mother soon rights that. Another pays a daily visit to the garden, wandering around and appearing to admire the flowers but not doing any damage.

Llamas are very curious and are friendly unless pushed. Bud Kinsman and I went up to get pictures of the animals and as the Jacksons were away we weren't too sure of just what our welcome would be. So we wandered casually around the field without attempting to go near them at first. Pretty soon they came toward us and several of them showed curiosity about the camera.

Llamas don't kick or bite but if you push them or they don't like you, they hiss. According to the Jacksons. If this happens you'll have to get into the bath. It is quite natural for llamas to hiss and spit like camels do as they are members of the camel family, though much smaller and without the hump.

The hide of the young llamas is very soft and silky almost like a deep pile cashmere. The fleece has a wide variety of uses. It is made up into coats, slippers, bedroom rugs, etc.

A native of the Andes, the llama is still in common use in Peru, Northern Chile and Argentina.

The Incas used llamas to carry burdens, as food, for clothes, rugs, slippers, and as a source of fuel (dried dung).

Today they are still used as pack animals, although sheep have largely taken over as a source of wool. Only males more than three years old are used as pack animals.

A 200-pound male llama can pack 100 to 130 pounds on a three-week trip, averaging from 15 to 20 miles a day. If too heavily loaded or tired, the animal will hiss and spit.

They have a high thirst tolerance, endurance and ability to subsist on a wide variety of forage. That is what makes them so valuable in crossing the bleak Andean plateaus.

However, that is all in the native land of the llama. Here it is just treated as a pet and can be hitched to a small cart for children to ride in.

The llamas, who have such names as Pampas, Chile, Peru and Jackie, share life on the Jackson place with six horses, a couple of black labradors and a cute little seven-week-old monkey.

Foiled Hash Stash Foiled

WINNIPEG (CP) — A basket of fruit that a girl left for her boyfriend at the city jail the other day contained a little something extra — inside the banana was $10 worth of hashish in aluminum foil, and a note: "I love you."

Girls Reject Bad Habits

LUTON, England (UPI) — The nuns' habits in a play called The Devils was too much for the girls in the production by the town's amateur September Players group. They quit because the nuns in the play are obsessed with violence and sex, and the script called for the girls to perform simulated sex acts half naked.

Cancer Sign In Ear Wax

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A University of California physician reports that women with wet ear wax have a greater chance of developing breast cancer than those with the dry type wax.

Dr. Nicholas J. Petrakis, a specialist in preventive medicine at UC medical centre, said the wax type depends on a pair of genes which may also control the production of body substances capable of destroying viruses suspected of causing breast cancer.

Chief Red Cross Nurse Retires

'The Cloak Gets Heavy'

TORONTO (CP) — Nurse Helen McArthur, who started her career 40 years ago in the Lesser Slave Lake district of Northern Alberta, has hung up her cloak.

Miss McArthur, 60, retired this week after 25 years as national director of nursing services for the Canadian Red Cross.

Her position, she said, had been one of leadership, "and the cloak gets kind of heavy when you have to carry it consistently."

Between the beginning of her career and retirement, Miss McArthur served in war-torn Korea, Japan, and in Canada for several organizations.

she was interviewed this week as she was vacating her Toronto office.

"After you empty all the drawers," she said, "you get all nostalgic."

However, she added, "the thing that strikes me most is the amount I've packed into the last 25 years."

During her three-year stay in the Lesser Slave Lake district, she was one of only two public servants in the area. The other was an RCMP officer.

In those days, a nurse was so much in demand in Northern Alberta that "you never locked your door."

She served both in Korea and in Japan for 18 months as a special representative of the Canadian Red Cross and as associate co-ordinator for the League of Red Cross Societies as well as Canadian advisor to the Korean Red Cross.

Miss McArthur became director of the school of nursing at University of Alberta after completing her bachelor of science degree.

She also has held office in several professional organizations.

She has been president of the Canadian Nurses' Organization and of the University of Alberta Hospital Alumni Association. Miss McArthur was first vice-president of the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses and chairman of the nursing section of the Canadian Public Health Association.

She also has served in an international capacity, as chairman of the League of Red Cross Societies.

During her career, Miss McArthur earned several awards, including the Florence Nightingale Medal, highest nursing award of the Canadian Red Cross, in 1957.

This year she was the first recipient of the Canadian Nurses Association medal for leadership in the profession.

After all this, Miss McArthur said:

"We spend much too long taking leadership roles in my profession. There are so many brilliant young women to carry on the work and to set new patterns and new directions for the profession to take."

Baptism Rite Faces Exploration

What does spiritual baptism mean in today's world?

This is a question to be explored at First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday.

"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit," states one of the scriptural passages to be read in the lesson-sermon entitled Spirit.

A related passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy will be read: "The baptism of Spirit, washing the body of all the impurities of flesh, signifies that the pure in heart see God and are approaching spiritual life and its demonstration."

Andras Helps Women

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Andras, federal minister of state for urban affairs, did not lightly accept the task of co-ordinating programs to implement the report of the royal commission on the status of women.

He first wanted to know whether Prime Minister Trudeau was personally committed to making the implementation of report recommendations a government priority.

Mr. Trudeau said yes and Mr. Andras, a straight talker with an informal manner, was assigned the job last May.

That's how he wound up recently facing top executives, including presidents and vice-presidents, from more than 50 Crown corporations such as Air Canada, the CBC and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., to discuss better work opportunities for their women employees.

"Most Crown corporations and . . . most departments of government do not frankly, have a record of enthusiasm regarding the advancement of women," Mr. Andras reminded them.

Thursday in his spacious office overlooking the Rideau River he said that the gathering showed a co-operative spirit, but "I felt a bit of defensiveness . . . a bit of male chauvinism coming out."

In other areas there already has been progress arising from work by an interdepartmental committee studying the commission report and ways of implementing those recommendations aimed at the federal government.

When the committee has found that certain recommendations could and should be implemented simply by changes in departmental regulations without referral to Parliament, this has been done.

"Let me give you an example from my own shop," Mr. Andras said, referring to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. Regulations governing National Housing Act loans were changed to eliminate discriminatory practices.

"We'll do as much as we can through government departments and Crown corporations through their regulations. And if they don't move we'll sit down and talk to them." The tone of his voice suggests any such talking will produce action.

Amchitka N-Blast Delayed

Victorians Urged To Thank Nixon

Rev. R. J. D. Morris of First United Church has called on Greater Victoria citizens to let President Nixon know they are grateful for the action of the U.S. Senate in putting off the detonation of a five-megaton hydrogen bomb on Amchitka Island for at least six months.

Morris said this week he believes the delay till next March gives Nixon a "basis for cancelling the bomb."

He quoted a recent statement of Democratic Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska who advised to not put so much pressure on Nixon that he can't cancel. "Let him be a hero," Gravel said.

Morris believes that now may be the time to tell the U.S. president that Canadians are grateful for the latest development and to urge him in the name of humanity to be a peacemaker.

In a recent sermon Morris told his congregation he understood the U.S. government was particularly sensitive to Canadian and Japanese opinion in the matter and that a massive wave of protest in these countries could well be the crucial factor in causing the test to be cancelled.

He now feels that, while communications should still be sent, the tone might be changed.

A telegram from The Canadian Coalition to Stop the Amchitka Nuclear Blast was read into the record when the U.S. Senate met a week ago and voted to refuse funds for the blast, Morris said.

The United Church Conference in British Columbia unanimously moved a vote of protest against these tests at its meeting in May. The church is a member of The Canadian Coalition, as are representatives of the Vancouver and District Council of Churches, Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Anglican and Unitarian Churches, Quakers, United Nations Association, YWCA, Sierra Curb, B.C. Environmental Council, SPEC, Canadian Association of Human Environment, Canadian Labor Congress, Amchitka 2 and Don't Make a Wave Committee.

In Tokyo this week a talk was delivered by Inez St. Dennis, a University of Victoria arts student, to the Japan Congress Against the A and H Bombs on behalf of Amchitka 2.

Miss St. Dennis told the congress that Amchitka 2, formed in Victoria, had sent two representatives to the AEC hearings in Anchorage, Alaska, one of whom was Sevichi Tanaka, a Japanese student at Uvic. She said the Victoria group was one of the co-plaintiffs in a court action being undertaken in the U.S. to stop the explosion.

Miss St. Dennis reiterated the fears of many that the blast would trigger sizable earthquakes and tidal waves.

"Despite its repeated assurances, the AEC cannot and does not guarantee that such catastrophes would not be initiated by the blast," she said.

"The record of the AEC testing in Nevada in the U.S.A. would tend to undermine their assurances. In that state, repeated underground explosions of much smaller magnitude have caused violent earth tremors in a formerly stable area. Indeed, the AEC itself has placed a one-megaton limit on bombs to be exploded in Nevada.

"An additional concern is that dangerous quantities of radioactive material will be released into the environment. The AEC has a record of over seven per cent unexpected venting which in one case released considerable radiation over 13 western states and, in violation of the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, parts of Canada.

"If such radioactivity were to be released into the sea by the proposed Amchitka blast, the concentration of certain dangerous materials in the food chain, with its tragic consequences to the fishing industries of Canada and Japan, would be a disaster. One of the ironies of the choice of Amchitka as an explosion site is that it is an official wildlife sanctuary with a large population of sea otters and birds."

Theologians Meet To Discuss Virgin Mary Cult

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Roman Catholic theologians and theoreticians from orthodox, Anglican and Protestant churches gathered in a communist country Friday to discuss how much in common they have about the cult of the Virgin Mary.

About 150 theologians from 22 nations were taking part in the 6th Mariological Congress.

The theme of the six-day congress is "worship of the Virgin Mary from the sixth to the 11th century." The congress, held in the Zagreb Theological School, is to discuss the cult of Mary to try to determine on which points the churches differ and on which they agree.

It was the first time such a congress has been held in a communist nation.

Catholic sources in Zagreb, the capital of predominantly Catholic Croatia, said the congress should contribute to better understanding among churches which have different attitudes to the Virgin Mary.

The congress is to deal strictly with the cult of Mary, and such issues as celibacy of priests, divorce and birth control will not be discussed, said the Rev. Pavao Melada, secretary of the International Marian Pontifical Academy of Rome.

The Mariological congresses are of scientific character and first was held in Rome in 1950. The Mariological congress will be followed by the 13th Marian Congress Aug. 12-15 at the nearby shrine of Marija Bistrica. Thousands of pilgrims from Yugoslavia and abroad are to come to attend the Marian congress which is of popular character.

Russian Spreads Gospel

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — A Baptist preacher and organist from Moscow said Thursday the Soviet state does not restrict his preaching.

Rev. Ilia Orlov, 45, said he is allowed to preach the Christian gospel "as it stands in the Bible."

Sunday schools are not permitted because education is a state function, he said.

"But as far as personal evangelism is concerned, we are completely free. On economic matters we are loyal to the state. Our preaching is not contrary to the economic system we live under."

Although young people under 18 are not permitted to join the church, Moscow teenagers are eager to preach and Bible correspondence courses are expending, he said. Every year, "thousands of young people" are baptized.

Dr. Orlov is one of three Moscow delegates among 160 attending sessions of the Baptist World Alliance at Acadian University here.

Sunday School Numbers Decline

Churchmen Accept Challenge To Use Modern Techniques

By BARRIE DOYLE

United Church membership reached a peak of 1,064,033 in 1965 but four years later it had fallen to 1,048,733 and it's still falling.

Between 1968 and 1969, the Anglican Church of Canada lost nearly 100 clergymen, 1,000 Sunday school teachers and 26,000 pupils.

Those who equate success with mere numbers read into this decline an eventual doomsday for the organized church with its remnants being picked over at an "ecclesiastical rummage sale."

Churchmen themselves are more optimistic. They look upon the shift as a challenge and an opportunity, a time to reorganize and revitalize the church, to use modern techniques to reach and serve modern man.

Stained Glass

The church as a physical entity of spires and stained glass might even disappear, some feel. But its spirit would be rekindled in community cells existing in homes, schools or recreation buildings.

Others see various professions adopting a religion suited to their callings . . . vocational churches of a sort.

Statistics compiled by most denominations show a high-water mark in attendance reached in the early or mid 1960s, with a decline starting in the latter half of the decade.

Ministers point out candidly, however, that all names on church rolls aren't worshippers before the altars.

Fight Back

Ministers who see this as a time to regroup and fight back do not all feel that the church building itself is sacrosanct.

Neither do they feel bound by traditional theology or church hierachy.

Canon Philip Jefferson, director of diocesan services for the Anglican Church, looks to a future of small neighborhood cell groups, rather than parishes.

"We won't have 75 Anglican church buildings in Tornoto, for example," he said. "Rather, there will be one 'cathedral' for all to gather and meet in. At the same time, these neighborhood cells will replace the local parish.

"They will meet in schools, recreation rooms, living rooms, and so on," he added.

Bishop John Bothwell, former Anglican Church program director and now suffragan Bishop of Niagara, agrees with his colleague's analysis, but declares: "It's unlikely, though, that we'll be meeting in a stricity Anglican 'cathdral'. More probably it will be an ecumenical meeting centre shared by several denominations."

Not a Dream

Confidence that a church of some kind will be around in 25 or 50 years is not a dream, Rev. Ernest Long of the United Church believes.

Speaking to a General Council meeting at Niagara Falls earlier this year, he told church delegates from across Canada that the church would be around because "there is a great deal going for us."

Among these, he said, are new, "more spontaneous and more vibrant" forms of whorship, and a new understanding of the nature of change.

He admitted to the delegates however, "the cynics among us" would perhaps be justified in arguing the church should plan for "a kind of ecclesiastical rummage sale or even bankruptcy proceedings" rather than a dynamic future.

Definite Place

Taking the bull (and the cynics) by the horns, the former moderator of the United Church, Dr. Robert B. McClure, told a reporter recently that there was a definite place for the church in society "and the people realize it."

Religion is, in his opinion, "a cement holding people together."

In all denominations there is a growing acceptance of the need to minister to various needs within their membership and to accept various forms of ministry, ranging from the formal and tradition to the radical experimental.

The change is even creeping into the Roman Catholic Church.

On a recent visit, Leo Joseph Cardinal Suenenss a controversial Belgian prelate, suggested the church give a greater role to women, and challenged the traditional doctrine of papal primacy.

Pope's Role

Cardinal Suenens has already suggested the Pope's role should be one of "more and more concentration on what is essential, such as the unity of faith, leaving administration problems to others."

As it stands now, he said, the Pope has administrative, legal, judicial and theological powers "all in one person."

He also called on Catholics to demand greater lay participation in selection of bishops, and said his greatest aim is to see them being selected "without seeking papal approval, as is now needed."

He described the current system of papal selections of bishops and cardinals as "something like President Nixon nominating all the prime ministers all over the world."

Successor

The 67-year-old cardinal was tagged as a likely successor to Pope John in 1963, and is still regarded as a prime candidate, although he plays down the possibilities.

For some, of course, the idea of radical change is too much. They prefer meeting once or twice a week in a building known as a church and would feel uncomfortable in any other setting.

Mark Gibbs, a British college professor and lay theologian who acts as a consultant to the United Church, says the church must be aware of these feelings, and not force change for the sake of change.

Get Away

He prefers that the church be prepared to accept the local church and parish as a viable form of ministry, both now and in the future.

"However," he warned, "we must get away from the concept that the parish has a monopoly of interest in the life of the people."

Both he and the Anglican Church's planning director, Rev. Bill Lowe, are excited about a new trend toward vocational churches.

Groundwork

"Members of one vocation or another will gather in church groups to discuss Christianity and their profession. Sort of, 'what is morality with regard to our profession and how does Christianity fit in" said Mr. Lowe.

Besides vocational churches, Mr. Gibbs is looking for special training for laymen, to enable them to take a greater part in church theology and functions than they do at present.

The groundwork, he said, has been laid. Colleges which could be turned into lay training centres already exist so that "it is strictly a budgetary question now."

Jack Cooper, Presbyterian Church secretary of extension, dislikes current talk of union between any denominations because he feels they're going about it the wrong way.

Having survived the God Is Dead theology, most ministers feel they are now looking toward a revival of spiritual searching.

Jesus Freaks

They point to the rapid spread of the Jesus Freaks movement across the continent. They point to recent musical records which turned out such "spiritually"-oriented songs as Bridge Over Troubled Waters; Jesus Christ, Superstar; Amazing Grace and Put Your Hand In the Hand.

"We're at the stage where we can go anywhere," said Bishop Bothwell. "The church can turn inward and harden in style and become a museum.

"Or," he said, "we can turn outward and be everything we ought to be — flexible, open to change, ready to meet all needs. The church of the future will, if we do that, be a co-ordinating, communicating catalyst, not a dominating rigid body as we are now."

Amiens Date Service Set For Cenotaph

A wreath-laying ceremony to commemorate the Battle of Amiens, Aug. 8, 1918, in the First World War, will be held at the Cenotaph at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The battle, also called the Battle of St. Quentin, began at 4:20 a.m. Aug. 8 when the Canadian and Australian corps, supplemented by 435 British tanks, began to advance in the area east of Amiens and south of the Somme.

By the last week in September the stage was set for the Allied assault on the Germans' Hindenburg position and the final advance to victory.

George Burnham, president of Our Flags of the Century Association, who is organizing Sunday's ceremony, has invited all veterans of both world wars to attend. The public is also invited.

Celibacy Forces Priests To Quit

ROME (Reuter) — More than 2,000 Roman Catholic priests now are believed to be abandoning their ministries annually, mainly because of the church's celibacy rule, says a Vatican survey.

The survey, by the Roman Catholic newspaper Avvenire, has not been officially published by the Vatican. It shows that 1,906 priests quit in 1968.

The research was carried out by Rt. Rev. Emilio Colagiovanni, a noted sociologist, on behalf of the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

But Avvenire points out that the increasing number of defections is coming at a time when the number of Catholics is growing and the proportion of priests already diminishing.

Thus, while in 1960 there was one priest for every 1,254 Catholics, by 1969 there was one for every 1,417.

If the figures are brought up to date beyond the end of the period surveyed, they would show that some 13,000 priests defected since 1939, bringing the percentage of the total priesthood up to about 2.9, Avvenire says.

In studying the reasons for the defections, Colagiovanni found that for 75 per cent, "celibacy itself" was the overriding reason and for a further 15 per cent it was an important factor in their decision.

200 Teenagers Visit Victoria

Choir Concert Tour Part Of Baptist Faith Training

Victoria had a visit last weekend from more than 200 teenaged members of a church in Dallas, Texas, who came to sing and spread the gospel.

A large crowd turned out at noon last Saturday in Centennial Square to hear the Chapel Choir of First Baptist Church, Dallas, give a rousing concert of varied selections.

That, and a buffet supper at the Empress Hotel during which they gave centennial chairman Lawrie Wallace a scroll from the governor of Texas, just about wound up the visit to Victoria.

The young people, five busloads of them, stayed at the University of Victoria, and then they were on their way again.

How did they get here and why did they come?

"It is part of their religious training," Rev. Bob Dove of Delta, B.C., told the Colonist this week. "It is a growth experience, a serving experience."

Dove, who is superintendent of church ministries for the Canadian Baptist Conference, said his church invited the choir to B.C. to celebrate Centennial 71.

The young people contributed $250 each to the trip, money which they earned themselves, and the Dallas church paid the balance of the expenses, Dove said.

The tour started with a concert in Seattle July 23 and will end with concerts in the home church this weekend. In between, the choir has entertained in Vancouver, Victoria, Penticton, Kamloops, Calgary, Banff, Jasper and Saskatoon.

Appearances in Vancouver included concerts at Queen Elizabeth Theatre, in schools, at supermarkets and in Stanley Park and half-time performance at the B.C. Lions-Saskatchewan Rough Riders football game in Empire Stadium July 27 which ended with a standing ovation.

The choir left Dallas 187 strong — accompanied by 31 sponsors, some of whom are parents of the singers, in two chartered planes, a 727 and a 737. In Seattle they switched to seven chartered buses, five of which brought them to the Island from Vancouver.

The choir toured western Canada in 1967 Centennial Year, but this was the first appearance in Victoria.

In its 12 years of existence the choir has toured, in addition to North America, many European and Asiatic countries.

It has been directed by Lee Roy Till since its inception.

The choir's home church, founded in 1868, now covers four city blocks in downtown Dallas and has a membership of 15,000.

The pastor, Dr. W. A. Criswell, has served the church for the past 26 years.

Its music ministry has an enrolment of 1,600 persons. There are 20 choirs for all ages ranging from children to adults. Total membership in the Chapel Choir is 600 teenagers.

The music ministry also includes an orchestra, instrumental ensembles, three English handbell choirs and an angkalung choir. (The angkalung is a Malayan musical instrument made of bamboo tubes. The Baptist Church in Bangkok, Thiailand, gave the Dallas church 20 of them which the choir subsequently played in Bangkok).

The church has three pipe organs, two electronic organs and 90 pianos.

It is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention which has 11.5 million members in 34,000 churches in North America.

There are seven Vancouver-area churches in its Canadian fellowship but none on Vancouver Island.

Turner Gives Lead

Attitude Changing To Crime, Punishment

By FRANK MORLEY

The British Columbia public was astonished to discover that Miss Ann Spiller, a bank teller who stole $494,000, was sentenced to three years and on appeal by the Crown had the sentence doubled to six years, had been released on parole less then two years later. Long before that, however, she had been allowed out to take a course in social work at Queen's University. Does this parole system make a judge's sentence almost meaningless? Does it take the deterrent factor from punishment?

Undoubtedly it does point up a radically new attitude to crime and punishment. A lead for this comes from the Justice Minister John Turner who holds that the law "should be more than just an agency for social control."

Revolutionary

It should "adopt a creative and even revolutionary role in the building and restructuring of a new society, and articulate the values by which men seek to live." He also talks of subjecting the judges to greater discipline and redress the plight of the poor in obtaining bail.

The history of punishment for crime shows a continuous and quickening shift from severe punishment to humanity.

At one time almost every crime in Britain was punishable by the death penalty. Thieves were commonly branded with the letter "T" on the forehead and criminals might have ears, nose, or hands cut off, while the lash until recently was used with extreme brutality.

Great Debate

During the nineteenth century there was a violent reaction against such mindless inhumanity and great debate raged among the philosophers as to whether punishment should be regarded as deterrent, retributive, reformatory, or educative.

F. H. Bradley contended that reform and deterrence were external to the fact of punishment, though they might well accompany punishment. For Bradley punishment was a "social surgery", a reaction of the community against all that weakened it, and an appropriate punishment should be judged in terms of protection of society. With Bernard Bosanquet and the great historian, T. H. Green, Bradley thought retribution was just and necessary.

Violation

Green also maintained that punishment was preventive and thus retributive in the sense that the state consisted of a system of publicly supported rights and any violation of those rights must so punish the offender that the balance can be adjusted and maintained. Theologians can recognize here one of the major doctrines of the Atonement. Likewise Bosanquet held that the intent of punishment was to maintain and give expression to the moral standards of the social conscience.

The formidable J. S. Mill set forth the theory that punishment should be regarded as a kind of "medicine", only justifiable when it benefited the offender and protected society. Inasmuch as he believed the springs of human action came from pain and pleasure, more pain than pleasure must come from crime through punishment.

Benevolence

To those who argued that mercy was indispensable to punishment, Jeremy Bentham stated that forgiveness was only a virtue when justice had been done and a benevolence which disregarded this was cruel to the wrongdoer as well as society. Thus J. D. Mabbott, C. S. Lewis and Emil Brunner have argued that "to be punished for an offence against the rules is a sane man's right," and justice outraged.

The famous justice, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was always angry when a lawyer spoke of "justice," maintaining that it was an emotional word and the pressing problem was what was to be done. This accords with the pragmatism of American law.

Compensation

Basic facts worth considering are given too little attention by reformers. One was the axiom laid down by the distinguished Alberta justice, Mr. M. M. Porter, that "crime must never be made profitable." Another is the question of compensation to victims of crime. Should not criminals be forced to make what compensation they can?

If reformation of the criminal be a primary objective so that he may be a "good" citizen, is it not just one step further to say that social offenders should be sent to the hospital for a brain or other operation to make him docile? Punishment today victim or of the delinquent's family.

Outdoor Prayer Popular

Total attendance at the open-air gospel services in Beacon Hill Park this summer has reached about 3,000 persons, Frank Hunter, chairman of Park Services Interdenominational, estimated this week.

Seventh in the series will be conducted by the Alliance Church of Victoria at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Cameron bandshell.

Henry Hooge will be master of ceremonies and songleader and Mrs. Donna Macluskie will be accompanist. Alfred Hitchen will give trumpet solos and vocal music will be performed by duos, trios and quartets.

Sixth Recital At Cathedral

The sixth of nine recitals in the Saturday afternoon summer musical series in Christ Church Cathedral will be held at 4 p.m. today. Taking part will be Madeleine Groos, soprano, and organist Beal Thomas, director of music at the cathedral.

Occult Interest Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Church lessons in judo . . . a Christian "night club" . . . a pastor in clown's face going through acrobatics . . . worshippers in gunny sacks . . . whisky bottles on the church floor . . . Sunday school students pondering demonology.

These are among the various off-beat tactics that show up these days in church operations in the U.S. to whet interest and get the message across.

"We're doing it because there is an occult interest explosion," says Rev. Raymond Tiemeyer, a Lutheran Church education expert in explaining reasons for a new intermediate church-school course called "Mystery Trip."

It makes use of Tarot cards, incense, fortune-tellers and descriptions of the black mass, demonology, astrology, psychic phenomena and other mysteries along with contrasting Biblical concepts.

The objective, the pastor Tiemeyer says, is to examine reasons for the surge of occult interest among youths in "rebellion against the more mechanical impersonal view of life and the hunger for the mystical."

In San Antonio, the Green Gate Club, once known for its strip shows, reopened in June as a "Christian Night Club" featuring a miniskirted, blonde professional singer, Karen Blackwell, who calls herself a "Jesus person."

In Detroit's Central Methodist church recently, the robed choir marched through piles of whisky bottles, mason jars, pop bottles and baby food jars to reach the choir stalls.

The ton of bottles, stretching from the pulpit area out two side doors and down a corridor, had been brought there by worshippers to dramatize the nation's pollution problem.

At the Clen-Moore United Presbyterian church in New Castle, Pa., the pastor, Rev. Jack Heinsohn sometimes puts on clown's makeup and goes through acrobatics on a trampoline to get across points to younger members.

"I inject into the whole routine some good solid lessons in Christianity," he says, including the idea that many people hide their true selves behind false faces. He got his clowning talents from growing up in a circus family.

In Sacramento, Calif., St. John's Lutheran church sponsors a judo and ju-jitsu club with nearly 100 participants, male and female of varying ages, in a church-owned athletic and recreation centre.

Windfalls

Every year, along about the back end of summer, I get a lot of plaintive complaints from backyard gardeners to the effect that immature apples are all falling off his treasured tree.

It is quite a common sight to see the back lawn littered with windfalls and while it is possible to use these up in the making of apple wine, it is still a substantial waste of potential fruit.

Strangely enough, heavy losses through windfalls are hardly ever experienced in commercial orchards except under hurricane conditions. Healthy apples should stay on the tree until harvest time, improving in color and flavor as they swell in size.

There is a reason for it — perhaps "June drop" — which in our climate more often occurs in July — in which the tree deliberately thins out its own crop to more or less balance its budget, retaining only the number of fruits it can support without overtaxing its strength. But any great number of windfalls in late summer is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong.

There is a reasonfor it — perhaps several reasons — and it is up to the home gardener to do a little detective work to discover the cause.

First thing is to check the nutrition of the tree. If feeding has been inadequate, the leaves will be undersized and of a poor color and the tree will produce a great number of small apples, many of which will fall as competition for food and moisture becomes acute.

I have mentioned several times in earlier columns how fertilizer can be applied in grassed-over areas — by pouring nutrient solution into crowbar holes made through the sod in an area away out under the outermost branch tips.

On cultivated ground, I don't think you can beat a generous surface mulch of old rotted manure, maintained permanently over the root tips and topped up annually with more of the same.

Dryness at the roots will have much the same effect as malnutrition, and if water is applied, it too should go in the drip area out under the branch tips. Crowbar holes again will help get it down to where it is most needed. It is useless to apply food or water close in to the trunk; the active portions of the root system are away out.

It isn't so generally realized that a tree — or any other plant — can suffer from thirst as a result of too much water. With poor drainage and soggy, stagnant soil in the rooting area, the very fine root hairs decay, and the tree finds itself in the situation of the Ancient Mariner — "Water, water everywhere, and not a drop to drink" — or, in this case, no roots with which to drink it.

Imperfect pollination often causes an apparently good set of fruit which later drops but this usually occurs much earlier when the apples are very small, no bigger than marbles. Incorrect pruning — either too light or too drastic — can also upset the balance of the tree and cause fruit drop.

By far the most common cause of windfalls, though, is an infestation of insect pests and this is where the commercial orchardist scores over the amateur — he sprays regularly, with the right sprays, correctly mixed and at the proper times.

If your windfalls have a hole in the eye and a worm in the core, codlin moth is your trouble. If you find a ribbon-like scar or streak on the skin of your fruit, your pest is the caterpillar of the apple sawfly.

Preventive sprays are about the only real answer to these pests. Excellent spray calendars are available free of charge from most dealers in garden supplies, and from the provincial Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON — Many attempts have been made to rewrite history. One of the more interesting is A Better History of The World. Herewith is Chapter XXVII, President Humphrey Inaugurates a New Political System.

The dawn of a new political era in America can be traced to the upset election in 1968 of liberal Hubert Humphrey over conservative Richard M. Nixon.

At the time, the country faced such critical problems as the war in Vienam, growing unemployment at home and the constant threat of thermonuclear war with the communist powers.

Declaring his election to be "a mandate for the liberal position," President Humphrey immediately announced his plan to withdraw American troops from Vietnam — at the rate of more than 50,000 a year.

The outcry from outraged hawks was deafening. "Surrender on the installment plan!" thundered the Chicago Tribune. "A piecemeal betrayal of our sacred dead!" cried Senator Stennis. And the president was hung in effigy by every American Legion Post across the land.

Ultimately, Humphrey was forced to bow to public pressure. But while more than half a million American troops remained in Vietnam, he moved quietly to open nuclear disarmament talks with the Russians.

No sooner had word leaked of the secret negotiations in Helsinki and Geneva than all hell broke loose at home.

The kindest name the conservative columnists called the president was "starry-eyed pacifist." On Face the Press, Senator Thurmond talked of "another Yalta in the making." And the country soon became convinced that "you can't trust the Russians."

While the disarmament talks died a slow death, President Humphrey's domestic legislation hardly saw the light of day at all.

His bill to share federal revenues with the blighted cities was killed in committee by Republicans on the grounds it was "simply a pay-off to Democratic big city bosses like Mayor Daley."

His more ambitious proposal to solve the tangled welfare mess through a guaranteed income to the poor was quickly scoffed to death by conservatives as "just another New Deal pie-in-the-sky step down the road to socialism."

As these liberal measures failed one by one so dismally, the mood of the country grew increasingly conservative, Imagine, then, how President Humphrey stunned the nation by announcing in July of 1971 that he, personally, would visit Red China!

The liberals cowered, the moderates shook their heads and the conservatives enjoyed a field day talking once again about "the party of treason," "Com-symps" and who lost China in the first place. A new edition of The Manchurian Candidate sold out overnight.

Congress impeached Humphrey before he could get to the airport. He was succeeded by Vice President Eastland, an arch conservative who had been nominated in '68 to balance the ticket.

President Eastland took one look at the nation's problems, ended the war in Vietnam in a week, disbanded the army, nationalized the Dow-Jones 30 Industrials, and dispatched helicopters to fly over the ghettos dropping $20 bills — much to the pleasant surprise of the liberals.

As for the conservatives, they reassured each other somewhat dazedly: "As a conservative, he must know what he's doing."

But the lesson was learned. The American voter and politician alike at last discovered the way their democracy worked. Since then, of course, liberals have voted only for conservatives and vice versa.

Lorne a Radical!

MARILYN BECK

This might blow the minds of those who consider Lorne Greene a great conservative father figure, but it's the liberals and the dissidents that the Big Daddy of Bonanza really grooves with. "I think we should be in a state of constant revolution," said the silver-haired actor when we chatted recently. "I've always been a dissident, I believe we should constantly be questioning, finding out the answers for ourselves. The if-it's-good-enough-for-my-father philosophy is not good enough for me. Values and ideas must constantly change."

Lorne's ideas set well with young people. When he addressed the graduating class of his alma mater, Queen University in Kingston, Ontario, in May he received a standing ovation. And he certainly made Los Angeles educators take notice when he once addressed the California Teachers' Association and blasted that radical changes are needed within the U.S. educational system.

"Children are filled with fear of failing," Lorne told me. "And so they learn those things they feel will please their teachers, and not those things that will give them creative fulfillment. They cheat, they don't care how they compete as long as they don't fail." Lorne's trying to make sure his three-and-a-half-year-old daughter doesn't fall into such education traps. She's been enrolled in the Montessori School for the past year and, among other accomplishments, can already speak Spanish fluently.

Sydney Harris
We're Anti-People

As you know, one of the great cosmic discoveries of our century has been "anti-matter." It has been found that every atomic particle in the universe has its "anti-matter" counterpart — a sort of mirror-image.

Matter and anti-matter are opposite in electric charge, but identical in mass. And if the two should ever collide, both will immediately blowup and disappear.

On bleak days, when I look at the headlines from all over the world and shudder, I am tempted to engage in the philosophical conceit that we are not really "people" at all, We are "anti-people."

It really makes more sense that way. Somewhere in the universe there are real "people." They are the positive charge, of which we are the negative.

They have the same mass, and look just like us; but they have prudently avoided us for millions of years, knowing that if they came into contact with "anti-people," we would all blow up.

Dimly we perceive what positively charged people would be like. We have had a few specimens — not many — throughout the ages.

They are people in whom love dominates hate, intelligence controls impulse, joy conquers bitterness, co-operation wins over rivalry. They live each for all and all for each.

We are the mirror-image, the "anti-people" of the universe. We are divided by politics, by nation, by race, by sex, by religion, by ideology, by the most idiotic of beliefs, prejudices and superstitions.

Time and again, we kill off millions of our bravest and our best, for reasons we can hardly comprehend a few years afterwards.

No other species that behaved so irrationally and so self-destructively could possibly survive long anywhere in the universe. Our conduct is contrary to all the laws of nature, reason and our own revealed religion.

We are supremely unable to practise what we love being preached about; we want everyone else to start acting better before we will take that perilous chance.

Is this not the definition of "anti-people" more than of "people"? Are we not what "human beings" ought to be, but turned inside out, with our vices perpetually trampling our virtues?

Do we not use our knowledge more for greed and vanity than for goodness; use our passions more for extermination than for reconciliation; use our lofty principles more for camouflage than for conformance?

The galaxies, we are told,

are receding further away from us at incredible speeds. Who can blame them? And who can doubt that on some distant planet, the real "people" are breathing a sigh of relief that their chances of colliding with us grow remoter every day?

"NOW they're even starting to cancel shows that DON'T win Emmies."

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — More trivia from the world of good music, like Waltz of the Flowers from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker suite, Hall of the Mountain King from Grieg's Peer Gynt, Prize Song from Wagner's Die Meistersigner and the stirring Polovtsian Dances from Borodin's opera Prince Igor. Man, that's music.

Today's question is the last and craziest of this lot. Name composers and longer pieces of classical music from which have come the Lone Ranger music, the 2001 music, the Elvira Madigan music and the Ode to Joy. Answers Tuesday.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

TURN RULE FOR HANDS AND BIDDING

As the reader may imagine, we are not exactly anti-husband-and-wife partnerships, and the bright showing of the Australian pair, Jimmy and Norma Borin, in the recent world championship (their country came third) pleased us immensely.

Not since Josephine Culbertson and the famous Ely has a married combination participated in such an event.

South	West	North	East

1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	All pass

Opening lead: Eight of hearts.

West led a heart and declarer saw that the contract, in effect, depended on the king of clubs. Thus, if he played low in dummy and won the heart with the king, or played the ten and won the jack with the king, he would make the contract if he could pick up the king of clubs, but go down if West had the king of clubs and returned a heart when he got in.

It was certain that East had the A-J of hearts, and possible that West had the king of clubs. Accordingly, on the inspiration of the moment, Jimmy played the queen of hearts from dummy!

East won with the ace and, after huffing and puffing, returned a diamond, whereupon declarer made the contract after losing a club trick.

It may seem that East was foolish to shift to a diamond when all he had to do was return a heart, but in reality he could hardly be blamed.

The play had strongly suggested that South had the K-x-x of hearts, in which case a heart return would be allowed to run to the ten.

Located on a QUIET cul-de-sac and backing on a park-like area, this specially-designed home is better than my words in describing it. Driving along the winding street of fine new homes, you will notice rustic post lamps, the old-brick and siding exterior enhanced by leaded-glass windows and the treed surroundings. A large entrance hall leads off to a most attractive and comfortable family room with its fireplace. This groundlevel floor is completed by a panelled utility room, bathroom, workshop, and fourth bedroom. The carpeted stairs open on to a lovely living room and dining room featuring a most attractive floor-to-ceiling fireplace. Kitchen is a home-maker's pleasure with its large eating area of dinette size. Courtenay Stays Cool

Everything Going Up

COURTENAY — Everything is going up in the city of Courtenay but few are complaining, least of all the aldermen.

Statistics for the month of July show that revenue from building permits and the total value of permits and fees from the parking meters, continued to show gains over the same period last year.

For July, building permits totalled $167,155, representing 12 permits for homes, additions and repairs. The seven months accumulative total is $1,097,960 compared to $782,230 last year. The seven months comparison for residential building alone, also increased.

W. Schneider, parking meter attendant reported that 120 meter and other violations had been committed in July, well up over the July 1970 figure of 57.

Some fines are still pending and others are to appear in court for failure to pay the $2 fine, he said.

Ten fire calls were received in July, five of which were from fires in cars.

Fire chief Lawrence Burns said, "Three of the auto fires were started by young boys."

He said they had been turned over to RCMP for action and their parents had agreed to pay for the damage caused.

L. B. Anderson, licence inspector, reported that of 31 delinquent businesses who were notified by mail that their business licence was overdue, nine had paid and 22 failed to reply and have had they licence cancelled.

There were three applications for new licences. These were in the cleaning, refrigeration and construction fields.

Sabry: Health foods proliferate

Nutrition Canada Coming

Fluoridation: All the Answers?

By JOHN MATTERS

Nutrition Canada, the country-wide survey of health and eating habits that will move to Greater Victoria later this month, likely will yield a significant statement on the effects of artificially fluoridated water supplies, its national director said here Friday.

However, Dr. Z. I. Sabry would not speculate as to what the recommendation might be nor would he say whether the addition of fluorine to community water supplies might become as mandatory as is the fortification of table salt with iodine.

(The addition of iodine to salt, instituted in the 1920s by the federal government as a regulation of the Food and Drug Act, suddenly reduced the incidence of goiter, a disease of the thyroid.)

Sabry acknowledged that there were deep passions on the question of fluoridating water but any federal legislation on the topic likely would have to be complemented by that of the provinces.

Dentists, doctors and public health authorities say they have proof that artificial fluorides sharply reduce dental decay. The opponents of fluorides say these statistics prove nothing and, in addition, there are ethical questions about mass medication.

Sabry explained that Nutrition Canada's survey teams will include dentists and their assessments of dental health will be correlated with the availability of fluoridated water.

"I hope we will be settling the controversy for once and for all," he said.

"There also is the question of whether the people have the right to vote on something of a health nature. Personally, I say 'no' but my wife disagrees with me."

(In B.C., a 60-per cent majority is required in a local referendum before the water supply can be fluoridated.)

Sabry was in Victoria to explain the objectives of Nutrition Canada, which in a two-year study will survey about 21,000 Canadians. The team will be in Victoria Aug. 27 and 30 and Sidney on Aug. 31, assessing about 50 persons each day.

Before they come to Victoria, the teams will be in Campbell River on Aug. 20, Port Alberni on Aug. 25 and Lake Cowichan Aug. 26.

A return visit will be made to Vancouver Island early in the New Year.

The B.C. segment of Nutrition Canada started at Chetwynd on June 28 and it has been moving through the north, interior and Lower Mainland.

Sabry said he has been quite amazed at the proliferation of the health food industry in this province. In some communities, he has observed that they are not large enough to support a supermarket but somehow support a health food store.

"B.C. probably is ahead of other provinces in this respect," he added. "The phenomenon is that people want to know what they are eating and this is occurring because

Apollo Moon Mission Ends This Afternoon

HOUSTON (AP) — The men of Apollo 15 said Friday during a news conference from space that the small rock which they think may be from the original lunar crust seemed almost to be waiting for them on a pedestal.

As they answered questions put to them by Mission Control for reporters, they passed the halfway point of their journey homeward. They were 122,747 miles from both earth and the moon, travelling 3,300 miles an hour.

It was a small fragment sitting on top of a dark brown fragment "almost like a pedestal," said moon mission commander David Scott.

"It was there apparently waiting for us. If we had more time at that site, we could have found more."

Alfred Worden and James Irwin also gave their impressions of the moon mission.

The small crystalline rock Scott described is thought to be a part of the primordial crust of the moon — the outer shell which formed shortly after the moon was created.

Splashdown and the end of Apollo 15's 12-day moon mission are aimed at the Pacific Ocean at 1:46 p.m. PDT today.

The 25-minute news conference was televised to Mission Control, but not carried live by any of the commercial television networks.

Asked what their biggest thrill has been on the flight, each astronaut answered in turn:

"Standing up on Hadley Mountain and seeing the lunar module and the rille and the mountains, seeing them all in one scope," said Scott.

"The liftoff that began the flight," said Irwin. "I was finally going into space after all that training."

"Two events stand out," said Worden.

"Right after lunar orbit insertion and we got our first close look at the moon. It was fantastic and spectacular. And the perfect trans-earth injection burn that started us home."

Earlier the astronauts had the opportunity to observe a partial eclipse of the sun and moon.

Two Months in B.C. Wilderness

Trapper, 48 Found Alive

HAZELTON (CP) — A man lost in British Columbia's northern wilderness since June 1 and presumed dead is recovering in hospital here after a two-month ordeal during which he lived on berries and leaves.

Ronald Alvin Woodcock, 48, had dropped to 100 pounds from 170 and could barely speak when found a few miles from here this week by two fishermen.

Woodcock, an experienced trapper, said he lived on green berries and leaves of edible solomon seal plant, while he trekked his way out of the bush that "was sometimes so thick I could hardly crawl through it."

"The only thing that kept me going was the thought of my wife and six kids. I wanted to see them again."

Woodcock was flown from this northern B.C. town to Blackwater Lake June 1 with three week's supplies. He arranged for the pilot to pick him up at the lake June 20, made camp and headed for his trap line. But he lost his way and wandered for almost three days before coming on the Skeena River.

Woodcock then headed cross-country looking for the long-abandoned and overgrown old telegraph trail, cut through the bush in the 1860s. He knew the trail would eventually lead him to Hazelton.

It took him 14 days and by then he had exhausted the food he had taken with him.

"The worst part of it all was the lack of food," he said.

Woodcock shot a moose with his rifle, but couldn't pack much of its meat with him. "I should have taken a handgun with me," he said, "because I saw hundreds of squirrels but couldn't shoot them without blowing them apart."

He estimated it took him a month to walk the 90 miles along the trail to where he was found. Because of the overgrowth, he lost the trail

Four Convicted In Greek Trials

ATHENS (UPI) — An appeals court trying 17 persons for subversion against the Greek military government convicted four of them Friday and acquitted 13 others, including three women.

The most severe sentence given to those convicted was a three-year prison term to Constantine Kostarakos, 26, an industrial student who admitted being a leader of the Rigas Ferraeos Students' Resistance Group.

The other three convicted were George Spiliotis, 29, a bank employee; Fotis Provatas, 28, an engineer, and Andreas Christopoulos, 24, a law student. Spiliotis and Provatas each were sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and Christopoulos was given a one-year suspended sentence.

"I am satisfied with the verdict. It could not be better under the circumstances," said Kostarakos after his conviction and sentence were announced.

The defendants were accused specifically of recruiting members for the resistance organization, printing and distributing of leaflets and writing slogans on walls that were anti-government, and maintaining contacts with the outlawed Greek communist party (KKE). All were violation of a special anti-sedition law.

Premiers Oppose Amchitka N-Test

The provincial premiers conference went on record here Friday as being opposed to the forthcoming U.S. nuclear test blast at Amchitka Island.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau the premiers expressed concern about the effects of the Alaskan tests and unanimously endorsed the position taken by Canada in opposing it.

Premier Bennett, chairman of the conference, told a news conference there was concern expressed about the danger of atomic blasts "anywhere."

He said the demonstration by conservation groups Friday morning outside the legislative buildings where the meetings were held didn't influence the premiers one way or the other.

Mother, Baby Carriage

Dramatic March Seeks Kidnapping Clues

HARLOW, England (AP) — Followed by five police cars, a heartbroken young mother pushed an empty baby carriage through the streets of this Essex town Friday in a dramatic effort to find clues to the kidnapping of her five-month-old daughter Denise.

On each police car was a sign: "Did you see this woman walking here at this time last week?"

Mrs. Terry Weller, 24, walked the quarter-mile from her home to the shopping centre, then came to a halt when Chief Supt. Willis Vickers, shouted over a loudspeaker: "Everyone stand still. Stop. Do not move."

Then, emotion choking his voice, Vickers, himself a father, called out:

"Someone must have seen what happened to baby Denise last week. I believe that here among you is someone who can provide the vital piece of information.

"We have never wanted your help so much as we need it today. Search your minds. Search your hearts. Think. Thanks from the bottom of our hearts. It is just a little baby,' mothers. It could be yours."

Thousands of residents took part in the reconstruction of the kidnap, at the request of the police. The kidnapper is believed to be a woman with emotional problems.

Everyone who was in the shopping centre when Denise was kidnapped last Friday had been urged to go there again this morning and to take up the positions they were in when the kidnap took place.

Denise's father, 25, said he and his wife are certain Denise is still alive "because no one could harm a five-month-old baby."

He put his arm around his wife and walked off with her afterwards.

There was no word of any real clue to the missing baby or her kidnapper.

Flowers, Coffin Ready 'Corpse' Very Upset

TORONTO (CP) — "You don't know what it feels like, knowing your coffin and flowers are bought," says Joseph Cormier. "I was very upset."

Cormier arrived at his Dunnville, Ont., home last January just ahead of the scheduled arrival of his body and, although his house was empty, "I could see there was something wrong."

So he telephoned his father-in-law, but all he got was a strained "Is this Joe?" before he heard the telephone bang down on the floor.

His daughter was screaming and "I couldn't make out what was happening for the confusion."

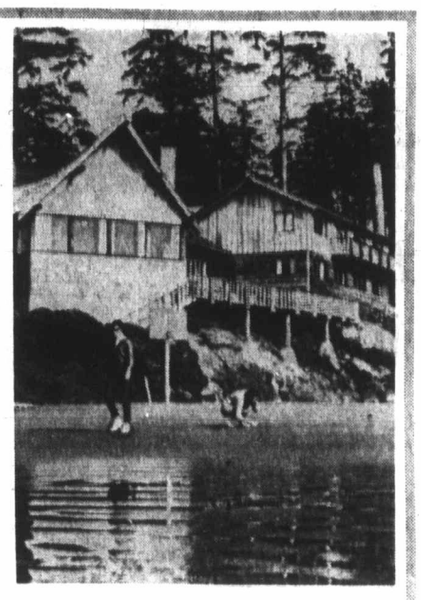
Cormier was the centre of a bizarre case of mistaken identity which had his wife and family involved in arranging his funeral, informing relatives of his death and ordering flowers.

His wife was told of his death by Medropolitan Toronto police while he was jobhunting in Hamilton. The error was not discovered until he returned after eight hours.

The body was identified later as that of another man with the same surname.

Mrs. Cormier is asking the Metro police department for $329.05 to cover expenses incurred.

In a letter to the Metro Police Commission, Metro solicitor A. P. G. Joy recommends payment of the amount in return for a release on liability claims from Mrs. Cormier.



Get-away-from-it-all lodge

Wickaninnish To Go

Inn of Future Out of Luck

Wickaninnish Inn, once hailed in a 1966 magazine article as part of "Long Beach's playground of the future," now appears to have no future at all.

Pacific Rim National Park director George Trachuk announced Friday the hotel at the south end of the beach will be purchased with federal and provincial funds and phased out of operation by 1975.

"Our policy is to remove all buildings within the park boundary," Trachuk said, adding that the inn and a small subdivision would be the last privately-owned property purchased.

Wickaninnish owner Robin Fells said Friday he has accepted the decision, "but I can't really understand it.

"Other national parks have hotels inside their borders," he said. "I think it's a good idea to have a place to stay right in the park There has been a lot of disappointment from our regular guests."

Fells and a partner built the Wickaninnish — originally a rugged, get-away-from-it-all lodge — in early 1960 after finding the site at the end of an old logging road

"If the government buys it, I hope they don't wait until 1975," Fells said. "If they are going to take it over, they should do it as fast as possible."

He said "it's too early" to decide whether he will attempt to build another hotel in the area "We'll have to see exactly what happens first."

Deep Bay Wharf Fees Blasted

Angry Fishermen To Protest

By JOHN LANGTON

QUALICUM BEACH — Angry commercial fishermen will group at Deep Bay government wharf Tuesday to protest wharf fees and debate their claims with an MP and an official of the federal ministry of transport.

The fishermen will meet Comox-Alberni MP Tom Barnett as well as the federal transport official.

Fishermen say the fees at Deep Bay, which is located between Qualicum and Courtenay, are too high.

Wharfinger's wages absorb most of the wharf fees collected, the fishermen say, leaving them little in return. There is no power, no light, and no restrooms. The only available fresh water is provided by a nearby private fish camp.

Boat owners are also concerned about the lack of protection from fire, theft and sinking at the wharf. They feel that the wharfinger should do guard duty and also phone boat owners if it appears that they are in danger of sinking.

Commercial fishermen are particularly grieved by the wharfage fees now that they have to pay $200 to $400 a year for fishing licences. George Smith, one of the Deep Bay commercial fishermen said that they are taxed to death.

Some other changes that the owners of work boats would like to see at Deep Bay include the removal of dinghies and equipment which is being stored on the wharf, restriction of dogs and separate sections for work boats and pleasure craft. They also object to private individuals putting up reserved signs on sections of the wharf.

Boat owners, including commercial fishermen using the French Creek government owned boat basin north of Parksville have also made complaints similar to those voiced at Deep Bay.

Strong Protest Call In Telegraph Cuts

DUNCAN — Strong protests could result if Duncan loses its telegraph office service Oct. 15 as predicted this week.

A special meeting of the Duncan city council Friday afternoon was urged to protest the closure if it was confirmed by Canadian Pacific Telecommunications.

Commenting on a Daily Colonist story Friday which said the Duncan and Port Alberni telegraph offices would close as economy measures, Ald. Allan Kerr told council to lodge a strong protest if the service was cut.

Kerr said the telegraph service was a very important one and served about 40,000 people. He estimated that between 700 and 900 telegrams were sent a month in the area between the Malahat and Cedar.

Ald. Tom Kilpatrick said: "If all people had used that service as much as I have they (CP) would have taken away the office long ago."

He thought the direct dialing telephone service had replaced the telegraph service.

(Duncan residents will dial Nanaimo telegraph office collect to lodge telegrams after Oct. 15.)

Acting Mayor John Homer said after the meeting that he learned meanwhile that if the telegraph office in Duncan closed it would be impossible for banks, other businesses and the public to cable money.

He said this service could not be done over the telephone because the telegraph operator would have to have either the cash or a document covering the financial transaction. He added many local Indians used the telegraph to send money rather than deal ing with banks.

Courtenay Stays Cool

Everything Going Up

COURTENAY — Everything is going up in the city of Courtenay but few are complaining, least of all the aldermen.

Statistics for the month of July show that revenue from building permits and the total value of permits and fees from the parking meters, continued to show gains over the same period last year.

For July, building permits totalled $167,155, representing 12 permits for homes, additions and repairs. The seven months accumulative total is $1,097,960 compared to $782,230 last year. The seven months comparison for residential building alone, also increased.

The figures were released in the report of building inspector E. L. Cronk.

W. Schneider, parking meter attendant reported that 120 meter and other violations had been committed in July, well up over the July 1970 figure of 57.

Some fines are still pending and others are to appear in court for failure to pay the $2 fine, he said.

Ten fire calls were received in July, five of which were from fires in cars.

Fire chief Lawrence Burns said, "Three of the auto fires were started by young boys." He said they had been turned over to RCMP for action and their parents had agreed to pay for the damage caused.

L. B. Anderson, licence inspector, reported that of 31 delinquent businesses who were notified by mail that their business licence was overdue, nine had paid and 22 failed to reply and have had they licence cancelled.

There were three applications for new licences. These were in the cleaning, refrigeration and construction fields.

Judge Jails Transients

NANAIMO — Two young transients were dealt a stiff reprimand and 14-day jail sentences after they pleaded guilty in Nanaimo Provincial Court Friday to three counts of shoplifting.

Dale Thomas Rothwell, of Sudbury, Ont., and Marie Ann Floyd, of Halifax, N.S., both 19, admitted taking deodorant, baby lotion and breath freshener from Little John Discount, bars of soap from Safeway and a towel from Eatons.

Rothwell had $180 in his possession when he was arrested.

Judge Frederick Green said, "There is no excuse for this behavior and this court will not tolerate it."

He said the pair had displayed "arrogant disregard" for the merchants of Nanaimo and that the fact they had money made their actions, "all the more intolerable."

The judge said that while it may be admirable for a young person to hitch-hike across the country, the court is becoming "increasingly alarmed and annoyed" at the shoplifting offences of transient youth.

Kenneth Cecil Meyers, 22, 103 Ashlar Avenue, pleaded not guilty to dangerous driving and car theft and will appear Aug. 26 for trial.

He was charged after a car smashed into Dick's Low Cost Market on Bowen Road about 1 a.m. Friday causing $10,000 damage.

Cowichan Band Lectures

Indians Teach Again

DUNCAN — Cowichan Indians will again become teachers this fall after a successful pilot program last year when Indians taught their traditions, language and contemporary Indian history. This year's two-semester series of lectures will be a credit course.

Cowichan Indian Chief Dennis Alphonse, one of the instructors, said the first semester will run from Sept. 9 until Christmas and the second semester will start Jan. 6.

The program is being co-sponsored by Malaspina College the adult education branch of the Cowichan School District and the Cowichan Indian Band. Alphonse said expenses will be met by a $2,250 grant from the provincial first citizens fund.

At a meeting this week, the Cowichan chief discussed the forthcoming lecutures with two other instructors including his wife, Philomena, and Ben George, and one of the organizers, Prof. Kevin Roberts of Malaspina College.

Other band members also will participate as teachers.

Alphonse said: "This year we want to concentrate more on Indian language and during each three-hour session we shall have one hour of language instruction." Some of the other subjects will include ceremonial and entertaining Indian dancing.

"We also hope to have some field trips to acquaint students with the geographical regions which were important in our people's history including the five communities within the Cowichan Indian reserve — Comiaken, Somenos, Quamichan, Kodsdah and Clem Clem Alutz."

There will be one three-hour lecture every week and all will be held at Duncan.

Proud quilters show off their centennial effort

Quilting Art on Its Way Back Says Woman Who Knows

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — Quilting a lost art? Not according to 11 women who gather at Bowen Park Complex each Tuesday afternoon.

Their instructor is Mrs. Mildred Rogers and all are members of the Bowen Park Seniors organization.

Mrs. Rogers has been exposed to quilting since she was a girl and her mother and grandmother performed the home art.

Mrs. Rogers said she tried to get people interested in quilting about 15 years ago, but it was out of fashion. Now, however, there is great interest in it and she has many requests to run classes.

The women have been working hard in past weeks making a centennial quilt that will go on display at the Vancouver Island Exhibition scheduled for Exhibition Park in Vancouver Aug. 19-20-21 and 22.

Quilts are usually made out of scraps of material but this one was made from material specially bought for the purpose.

Mrs. Rogers designed it and the quilt is large dogwood flowers on a plain background with the three C Centennial symbol stitched in between.

"Quilting is definitely coming back as an art," Mrs. Rogers believes, and the enthusiasm of the women who work with her each week proves this.

Not from EMI

Glendale Patients Imported

By JOHN MATTERS

Glendale Hospital's first patient will be coming from the lower Mainland instead of what was promised two years ago — the 62 children in Eric Martin Institute.

The provincial government apparently has decided that an understanding it had with Royal Jubilee Hospital, which operates EMI, cannot be executed and the result is that Glendale's first patients will be moved here from The Woodland's School, New Westminster.

Glendale is the new hospital built by provincial Mental Health Services for about 300 seriously mentally and physically handicapped patients. It has assembled most of its key staff and in about three weeks will be accepting the first patients at the institution, at the end of Markham Road, Saanich.

Written Pacts

Royal Jubilee had expected that the 62 handicapped children on EMI's fifth floor would be the first persons admitted to Glendale. Those expectations were based on written and verbal statements made at the time Jubilee took over EMI.

The hospital had hoped they might be moved so that it could get on with developing EMI as a unit offering the full range of modern psychiatric services. The handicapped children on EMI's fifth floor need mainly a custodial level of care.

Not Enough

When it took over the building, many structural modifications were necessary for the security of patients. However, in some cases those modifications to the building have not been capable of containing what psychoanalysts describe as libido.

Another disappointment has been the backlog of geriatric patients who have accumulated in EMI. This has occurred because it has not been possible to admit them to Riverview or private hospitals and rest homes.

Space Needed

The geriatric patients in EMI mainly suffer the senility that comes with aging. Doctors are disturbed that those patients are taking space that is needed by persons with acute psychosis.

In addition, child welfare authorities as well as psychiatrists are annoyed that the sixth floor of EMI, meant to be a children's unit, is still not in use.

Sabry: Health foods proliferate

Nutrition Canada Coming

Fluoridation: All the Answers?

By JOHN MATTERS

Nutrition Canada, the country-wide survey of health and eating habits that will move to Greater Victoria later this month, likely will yield a significant statement on the effects of artificially fluoridated water supplies, its national director said here Friday.

However, Dr. Z. I. Sabry would not speculate as to what the recommendation might be nor would he say whether the addition of fluorine to community water supplies might become as mandatory as is the fortification of table salt with iodine.

(The addition of iodine to salt, instituted in the 1930s by the federal government as a regulation of the Food and Drug Act, suddenly reduced the incidence of goiter, a disease of the thyroid.)

Sabry acknowledged that there were deep passions on the question of fluoridating water but any federal legislation on the topic likely would have to be complemented by that of the provinces.

Dentists, doctors and public health authorities say they have proof that artificial fluorides sharply reduce dental decay. The opponents of fluorides say these statistics prove nothing and, in addition, there are ethical questions about mass medication.

Sabry explained that Nutrition Canada's survey teams will include dentists and their assessments of dental health will be correlated with the availability of fluoridated water.

"I hope we will be settling the controversy for once and for all," he said.

"There also is the question of whether the people have the right to vote on something of a health nature. Personally, I say 'no' but my wife disagrees with me."

(In B.C., a 60-per cent majority is required in a local referendum before the water supply can be fluoridated.)

Sabry was in Victoria to explain the objectives of Nutrition Canada, which in a two-year study will survey about 21,000 Canadians. The team will be in Victoria Aug. 27 and 30 and Sidney on Aug. 31, assessing about 50 persons each day.

Before they come to Victoria, the teams will be in Campbell River on Aug. 20, Port Alberni on Aug. 25 and Lake Cowichan Aug. 26.

A return visit will be made to Vancouver Island early in the New Year.

The B.C. segment of Nutrition Canada started at Chetwynd on June 28 and it has been moving through the north, Interior and Lower Mainland.

Sabry said he has been quite amazed at the proliferation of the health food industry in this province. In some communities, he has observed that they are not large enough to support a supermarket but somehow support a health food store.

"B.C. probably is ahead of other provinces in this respect," he added. "The phenomenon is that people want to know what they are eating and this is occurring because

Apollo Moon Mission Ends This Afternoon

HOUSTON (AP) — The men of Apollo 15 said Friday during a news conference from space that the small rock which they think may be from the original lunar crust seemed almost to be waiting for them on a pedestal.

As they answered questions put to them by Mission Control for reporters, they passed the halfway point of their journey homeward. They were 122,747 miles from both Earth and the moon, travelling 3,300 miles an hour.

It was a small fragment sitting on top of a dark brown fragment "almost like a pedestal," said moon mission commander David Scott.

"It was there apparently waiting for us. If we had more time at that site, we could have found more."

Alfred Worden and James Irwin also gave their impressions of the moon mission.

The small crystalline rock Scott described is thought to be a part of the primordial crust of the moon — the outer shell which formed shortly after the moon was created.

Splashdown and the end of Apollo 15's 12-day moon mission are aimed at the Pacific Ocean at 1:46 p.m. PDT today.

The 25-minute news conference was televised to Mission Control, but not carried live by any of the commercial television networks.

Asked what their biggest thrill has been on the flight, each astronaut answered in turn.

"Standing up on Hadley Mountain and seeing the lunar module and the rille and the mountains, seeing them all in one scope," said Scott.

"The liftoff that began the flight," said Irwin. "I was finally going into space after all that training."

"Two events stand out," said Worden.

"Right after lunar orbit insertion and we got our first close look at the moon. It was fantastic and spectacular. And the perfect trans-earth injection burn that started us home."

Earlier the astronauts had the opportunity to observe a partial eclipse of the sun and moon.

Four Convicted In Greek Trials

ATHENS (UPI) — An appeals court trying 17 persons for subversion against the Greek military government convicted four of them Friday and acquitted 13 others, including three women.

The most severe sentence given to those convicted was a three-year prison term to Constantine Kostarakos, 26, an industrial student who admitted being a leader of the Rigas Ferraeos Students' Resistance Group.

The other three convicted were George Spiliotis, 29, a bank employee; Fotis Provatas, 28, an engineer, and Andreas Christopoulos, 24, a law student. Spiliotis and Provatas each were sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and Christopoulos was given a one-year suspended sentence.

"I am satisfied with the verdict. It could not be better under the circumstances," said Kostarakos after his conviction and sentence were announced.

The defendants were accused specifically of recruiting members for the resistance organization, printing and distributing of leaflets and writing slogans on walls that were anti-government, and maintaining contacts with the outlawed Greek communist party (KKE). All were violations of a special anti-sedition law.

Premiers Oppose Amchitka N-Test

The provincial premiers conference went on record here Friday as being opposed to the forthcoming U.S. nuclear test blast at Amchitka Island.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau the premiers expressed concern about the effects of the Alaskan tests and unanimously endorsed the position taken by Canada in opposing it.

Premier Bennett, chairman of the conference, told a news conference there was concern expressed about the danger of atomic blasts "anywhere."

He said the demonstration by conservation groups Friday morning outside the legislative buildings where the meetings were held didn't influence the premiers one way or the other.

Two Months in B.C. Wilderness

Trapper, 48 Found Alive

HAZELTON (CP) — A man lost in British Columbia's northern wilderness since June 1 and presumed dead is recovering in hospital here after a two-month ordeal during which he lived on berries and leaves.

Ronald Alvin Woodcock, 48, had dropped to 100 pounds from 170 and could barely speak when found a few miles from here this week by two fishermen.

Woodcock, an experienced trapper, said he lived on green berries and leaves of edible solomon seal plant, while he trekked his way out of the bush that "was sometimes so thick I could hardly crawl through it."

"The only thing that kept me going was the thought of my wife and six kids. I wanted to see them again."

Woodcock was flown from this northern B.C. town to Blackwater Lake June 1 with three weeks' supplies. He arranged for the pilot to pick him up at the lake June 20, made camp and headed for his trap line. But he lost his way and wandered for almost three days before coming on the Skeena River.

Woodcock then headed cross-country looking for the long-abandoned and overgrown old telegraph trail, cut through the bush in the 1860s. He knew the trail would eventually lead him to Hazelton.

It took him 14 days and by then he had exhausted the food he had taken with him.

"The worst part of it all was the lack of food," he said.

Woodcock shot a moose with his rifle, but couldn't pack much of its meat with him. "I should have taken a handgun with me," he said, "because I saw hundreds of squirrels but couldn't shoot them without blowing them apart."

He estimated it took him a month to walk the 90 miles along the trail to where he was found. Because of the overgrowth, he lost the trail

Mother, Baby Carriage

Dramatic March Seeks Kidnapping Clues

HARLOW, England (AP) — Followed by five police cars, a heartbroken young mother pushed an empty baby carriage through the streets of this Essex town Friday in a dramatic effort to find clues to the kidnapping of her five-month-old daughter Denise.

On each police car was a sign: "Did you see this woman walking here at this time last week?"

Mrs. Terry Weller, 24, walked the quarter-mile from her home to the shopping centre, then came to a halt when Chief Supt. Willis Vickers, shouted over a loudspeaker: "Everyone stand still. Stop. Do not move."

Then, emotion choking his voice, Vickers, himself a father, called out:

"Someone must have seen what happened to baby Denise last week. I believe that here among you is someone who can provide the vital piece of information.

"We have never wanted your help so much as we need it today. Search your minds. Search your hearts. Think. Thanks from the bottom of our hearts. It is just a little baby, mothers. It could be yours."

Thousands of residents took part in the reconstruction of the kidnap, at the request of the police. The kidnapper is believed to be a woman with emotional problems.

Everyone who was in the shopping centre when Denise was kidnapped last Friday had been urged to go there again this morning and to take up the positions they were in when the kidnap took place.

Denise's father, 25, said he and his wife are certain Denise is still alive "because no one could harm a five-month-old baby."

He put his arm around his wife and walked off with her afterwards.

There was no word of any real clue to the missing baby or her kidnapper.

Flowers, Coffin Ready 'Corpse' Very Upset

TORONTO (CP) — "You don't know what it feels like, knowing your coffin and flowers are bought," says Joseph Cormier. "I was very upset."

Cormier arrived at his Dunnville, Ont., home last January just ahead of the scheduled arrival of his body and, although his house was empty, "I could see there was something wrong."

So he telephoned his father-in-law, but all he got was a strained "Is this Joe?" before he heard the telephone bang down on the floor.

His daughter was screaming and "I couldn't make out what was happening for the confusion."

Cormier was the centre of a bizarre case of mistaken identity which had his wife and family involved in arranging his funeral, informing relatives of his death and ordering flowers.

His wife was told of his death by Metropolitan Toronto police while he was jobhunting in Hamilton. The error was not discovered until he returned after eight hours.

The body was identified later as that of another man with the same surname.

Mrs. Cormier is asking the Metro police department for $329.05 to cover expenses incurred.

In a letter to the Metro Police Commission, Metro solicitor A. P. G. Joy recommends payment of the amount in return for a release on liability claims from Mrs. Cormier.
